Siberian Osetra

This selection of caviar has been produced from pure bred Siberian Sturgeon now farmed and sustainable. Siberian Osetra provides a medium dark pearl that is creamy in texture and follows through with a crisp and nutty taste

Vodka: Stolichnaya "Elit" - 17

Champagne: Drappier "Carte d'Or" Brut - 38
Reims, Champagne, France NV

Royal Osetra

Royal Osetra is impeccable and without doubt the highest graded caviar in the world. The characteristics that define this amazing caviar are a large firm and succulent pearl, amber in color. These jewels of the sea provide a delicate pop which follows through with a crisp and distinct flavor and a fresh clean taste.

Vodka: Belvedere "Lake Bartężek – Single Estate" - 25

Champagne: Veuve Cliquoit "La Grande Dame" Brut - 95
Reims, Champagne, France 2015

Golden Osetra

There are several factors to grading Golden Caviar. Only a small percentage about 10% of Fine Osetra Caviar is produced in a golden color. Our Golden Osetra offers a clean and smooth taste with a hint of the clean sea lingering against one's palate.

Vodka: Beluga "Gold Line" - 36

Champagne: Dom Pérignon Brut - 125
Reims, Champagne, France 2013

Elite Reserve

Elite Reserve Caviar is the crème de la crème of caviar. This is our prime selection of high grade Osetra Caviar. Only 5-10% of the annual production meets the standards to be graded as Elite Reserve. Our favorite attribute of this grade of caviar is the flavor and impressively large pearls.

Vodka: Chopin "The Vault – 30 Year" - 950

Champagne: Louis Roderer "Cristal" Brut - 295
Reims, Champagne, France 2015

Wine Pairings

Wine Pairing is a delicate process of combining food dishes with the perfect wine to help elevate the dining experience. Food and wine pairing has been a technique of matching complementary flavors with the goal of heightening enjoyment of each component. The concept can be applied when matching wine with various dishes. Wine pairing is not only about matching food and wine solely for their excellence, but also to maximize the value that each component brings to the whole experience.

Craft Beer Spotlight: Miura "Double Master" A Unique Collaboration

The Double Master series is a collaboration between Master Sommelier Emmanuel Kemiji of Miura Vineyards [California] and Master Brewer Kerry McGinnis of Red Clay Brewing Co. [Alabama]. With the sole purpose of creating the finest craft beer possible.

[West Indies Pale Ale] Miura [Alabama] 10

The West Indies Pale Ale pays homage to the rich and long-standing brewing culture of the Western Hemisphere. Made with chocolate from the Dominican Republic and aged in tequila barrels, this beer has luscious and unique spicy notes.

[Pilsner] Miura "Forbidden Blade" [Alabama] 10

The Black Pilsner harks back to an ancient time when only Chinese Emperors were allowed to enjoy black rice. In ADDITION, we've added another wonderful fruit of the orient, Meyer Lemons, to make Forbidden Blade even more intriguing. This Black Pilsner is intended to be delicate, but full of crisp, distinct flavors and aromas.

[Caribbean Stout] Miura "Dark Cape" [Alabama] 10

The Caribbean Stout is flavored with Café Baldacci single estate coffee from Puerto Rico and aged in rum barrels. Dark Cape is rich, black, bitter and sweet all at once.

Vida Valiente Foundation

Supporting First-Generation-Low Income Students Through Leadership and Scolarship

The Pourpose

Vida Valiente is all about perseverance, resilience, and the bravery it takes to be the first to dive into uncharted territory. The Vida Valiente Foundation supports first-generation students who have worked hard to get themselves through school, but who could benefit from leadership from role models who grew up in similar low-income backgrounds. The Foundation pledges to support 25 students a year, for the entire four years of their academic journey.

The scholars the Foundation supports have a great deal to overcome. 90% of first generation-low-income students in the United States take over 6 years to graduate. 33% drop out after three years. Between courses, jobs, a lack of leadership and the sheer overwhelmingness of leaving home for the first time, it is a wonder even 10% of these kids make it.

The Vida Valiente Foundation is equipped to give these students the confidence, grace, and skill to convert their proven work ethic into their own success stories. Through four years of leadership and financial scholarships, the Vida Valiente Foundation gives admitted college students unprecedented exposure to professionals who grew up in similar circumstances, all of whom have made brave moves and can open doors to what's possible.

Spotlight: Featured Winery : MAXEM

In Latin, MAXEM has the distinction of meaning "best of the best"

It also combines our two children's names, Max and Emma

Sam & Nancy Kaplan

Sam, in his winemaking career, has been on the ground floor of some of Napa Valley's most exciting wine projects in recent history, helping to plant vineyards, build wineries and cement reputations with wines that speak of the unparalleled sites in which they're grown

Nancy, as a chef, spent years in top restaurants in New York and Napa Valley, honing her craft and her palate beside celebrated chefs who demanded nothing less than perfection.

We've had wonderful mentors, and access to exceptional raw materials. But now we get to apply all of our experience and all of our learning to our own wine project - MAXEM

Producer Spotlight : The Debate :
One Varietal - One Year - Three Vineyards – Many Perspectives

The debate celebrates the contrast of vintage, the discovery of varietals, the diversity of "dirt", the allure of single vineyards, the art of conversation, th different viewpoints, and most importantly the enjoyment of sharing them.

The Vineyards

Sleeping Lady Vineyard

Bettinelli's Sleeping Lady is located on the southern tip of the Yountville foothills in the alluvial Mayacamas Bench. The vineyard is named for the distinctive foothills behind the property, which look like a woman laying on her side. The Bettinelli Family are innovators in the farming community, embracing cutting edge technology allowing us to track photosynthesis activity, vine stress levels, and phenolic evolution throughout the year. Sleeping Lady is the coolest and most elegant of our sites due to the bay influence paired with its alluvial soil.

Beckstoffer To Kalon Vineyard

The Fabled Beckstoffer To Kalon Vineyard is nestled on the warm valley floor, cultivating a remarkable Cabernet Franc with granular tannins and a full-bodied mouthfeel. The biggest secret of To Kalon is its acidity. Due to its location on the west side of the valley tucked against the Mayacamus Mountain Range, the setting sun hides behind the acidity content of the berries. With a mere 10% of Cabernet Franc planted at Beckstoffer To Kalon, THE DEBATE is excited to share this expression of the varietal.

Stagecoach Vineyard

Stagecoach Vineyard is the largest contiguous vineyard in Napa Valley. The 1,100 acres of rocky, volcanic terroir extend from the southern edge of Pritchard Hill overlooking Oakville to the westernmost regions of the Atlas Peak appellation. Our Cabernet Franc block is located at the furthest northwestern block of Stagecoach at an elevation of 1,500 feet. The terroir is known for its volcanic, rocky, and iron-rich soil creating wines with power and density yet balanced with acidity.

Non-Alcoholic Wine

"Enjoy Life Alcohol Free"

Producer Spotlight : Leitz : The Rheingau's Most Storied Winery

One of the top wineries in Germany, Leitz makes non-alcoholic wines from the same grapes that go into their alcoholic ones. After fermentation, the wines are gently de-alcoholized so that they maintain their delicate aroma and authentic flavor profile.

"One, two… Zero? Something's off here, right?

Yes: the "alcohol's" off! "Ein Zwei Zero" consistently tops the list of best non-alcoholic wines [yes, these list really exist]. The German tradition of producing non-alcoholic wines is almost 80 years old: enough time to see massive leaps in growing and the dealcoholization process both. [trust the Germans to nail this sort of thing.]. At the same time, Leitz is one of the most storied Riesling producers in the Rheingau [they date back to 1744].

Leitz's home town of Rüdesheim is the historic birthplace of the famous distillery Asbach Uralt.

After the war, a fellow vigneron names Carl Jung began a distillery. Ultimately, Jung could not compete with thte local brandy, but he developed a vacuum distillation system which enabled him to lower the temperature at which alcohol could boil off [because the boiling point becomes lower as atmospheric pressure decresses]. Innovations in vacuum distillation have improved in recent years, and Leitz found a producer in Rheinhessen who recently patented a new, completely closed system that allows wine alcohol to boil at 28°C, preserving "wine-like" aromas and characteristics.

Spotlight : Champagne Explained

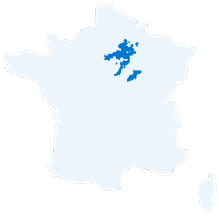
Wine Producing Districts of Champange

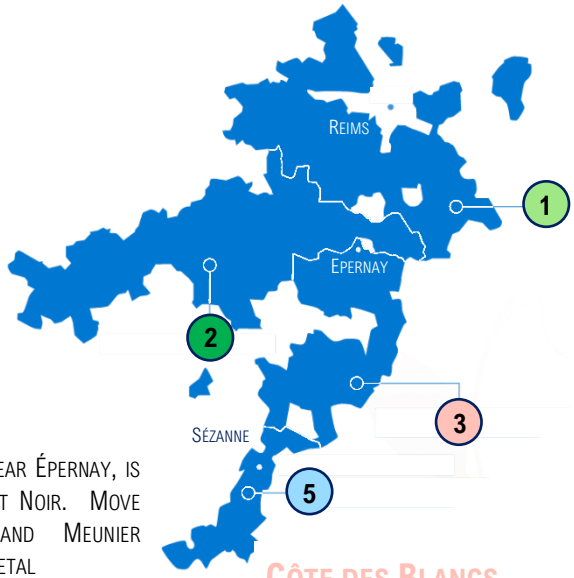
The viticultural boundaries of Champagne are legally defined and split into five wine-producing districts within the historical province:

Aube | Côte des Blancs | Côte des Sézanne | Montagne de Reims | Vallée de la Marne

The city of Reims and the town of Épernay are the commercial centers of the area.

France





Montagne de Reims

Surrounding the city of Reims like a half-moon, it extends lengthways east to west over nearly 20 miles and is 3 to 6 miles wide. The most common barite grown here is Pinot Noir.

Côtes des Bar [Aube]

Interwoven between the patchwork of vines are lots of little green valleys. Pinot Noir makes up 83% of the vines here, with a small percentage of Chardonnay and Meunier.

Vallée de Marne

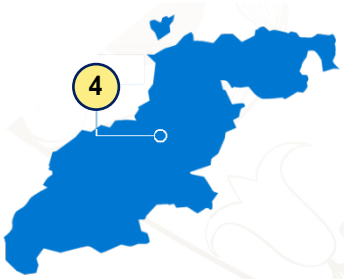
The area furthest east, near Épernay, is mainly planted with Pinot Noir. Move westwards, however, and Meunier becomes the dominant varietal

Côte de Sézanne

Although the Côte de Sézanne is really an extension of the Côte des Blancs, it is often regarded as 1 of the 5 Champagne sub-regions.

Côte des Blancs

The rolling landscape of slopes and hilltops is 6 to 9 miles long. Its chalk cliffs are particularly well suited to Chardonnay.



Types of Champagne & Sparkling Wine

Non-Vintage: A blend of grapes from different years

Blanc de Blancs: Made from 100% Chardonnay

Blanc de Noirs: Made from 100% Black grapes [Pinot Noir & Meunier]

Rosé: A pink colored wine made by mixing red wine with the white or via the saignée method.

Vintage: Made from the grapes of only one year's harvest, the year will be on the bottle.

CHAMPAGNE SPECIAL CLUB

Spotlight: Understanding Special Club Champagne "Club Trésors de Champagne"

Created in 1971 the Club Trésor was the first association of winemakers in Champagne to advocate an approach to viticulture based on the utmost standards of quality. The club is first and foremost about bringing together a group of likeminded men and women who are totally committed to the common objective of excellence. Since the creation of this pioneering association, the members have strived to PRESERVE THE ESSENCE OF THEIR VARIOUS TERROIRS AND TO PROMOTE THE EXCEPTIONAL CHARACTER OF THEIR WINES. TODAY THIS PHILOSOPHY IS MORE RELEVANT THAN EVER.

THE CLUB TRÉSORS COMPRISES 28 ARTISAN WINEMAKERS, SELECTED FROM THE FINEST AREAS OF THE CHAMPAGNE REGION, EACH ONE RECOGNIZED FOR THE QUALITY OF THEIR WORK. THE CLUB TRÉSORS IS THE ONLY ORGANIZATION IN CHAMPAGNE TO SELECT ITS MEMBERS ACCORDING TO A SET OF UNRELENTING QUALITY STANDARDS.

- EACH WINEMAKER MUST MAKE THEIR CHAMPAGNES ENTIRELY IN THEIR OWN PREMISES AND CELLARS. FURTHERMORE, THE CHAMPAGNE MUST BE MADE EXCLUSIVELY FROM GRAPES HARVESTED IN THEIR OWN VINEYARDS.
- EACH WINEMAKER IS DEVOTED TO THEIR WORK AND PASSIONATELY PROTECTS THE QUALITY AND THE UNIQUE CHARACTER OF THEIR OWN TERROIR.
- THE JURY OF OENOLOGISTS AND WINE PROFESSIONALS WHO SELECT THE CHAMPAGNES DEMAND IRREPROACHABLE QUALITY OF BOTH THE WORK IN THE VINEYARD AND THE WINES.
- EACH CHAMPANGE IS SUBJECT TO TWO BLIND TASTINGS [ONCE AT THE STILL WINE STAGE BEFORE BOTTLING AND AGAIN AFTER 3 YEARS AGEING IN BOTTLE] BY A PANEL OF PASSIONATE AND DISTINGUISHED OENOLOGISTS AND WINEMAKERS.
- A SPECIAL CLUB CHAMPAGNE MAY ONLY BE MADE IN OUTSTANDING VINTAGE YEARS.
- ONLY WINEMAKERS WHO HAVE SUCCESSFULLY PASSED THESE TESTS ARE DEEMED WORTHY OF PUTTING THEIR CHOSEN CHAMPAGNE IN THE UNIQUE "SPECIAL CLUB" BOTTLE WHICH MAY NOT BE USED BY ANYONE EXCEPT THE MEMBERS OF THE CLUB TRÉSORS.

Producer Spotlight : Minière F&R [Frederic & Rodolphe]

Frederic and his brother Rodolphe, are the fourth generation to lead their estate. The Domaine was founded in 1919 by their great-grandfather but they never bottled Champagne under their own name. For generations, the Minières preferred to sell all of their fruit to larger houses.

Frederic Minière worked with Anselme Selosse for two harvests in the late 90s. It was then that Fred fell in love with barrel aged Champagne and saw the benefits of organic viticulture. At the time, he was in the middle of his oenology studies. This experience was formative for him and it convinced him to bottle Champagnes under his family name. This dream would not be realized until 2007 when his father retired and the two brothers were able to chart a new course for the domaine.

Spotlight: Alessandra Divella
Italy's Answer to Grower Champagne

At twenty-nine years old, Alessandra Divella is the Italian answer to Grower Champagne, on track to upend the industrial farming practices rampant in Franciacorta. Her vines have been organic from the start and her two hectares, on lease for thirty years from an older neighbor, teem with life including rosehips and praying mantises. The aim is to eventually move toward permaculture. Grapes are always hand harvested and treated gently.

Alessandra herself has a quiet confidence that belies the adrenaline rush of her wines: Chardonnay and Pinot Noir, so saline and bracing they make your heart race. She does not come from a winemaking family but rather stumbled into it through interactions with winemakers that made her "feel at home." She does, however, draw from her family heritage when it comes to detail and precision: her Italian father [for which the NiNì cuvée is named] and Swiss mother [Clo Clo] are both academics

Unavailable ○ | Alessandra Divella "Rosé – Clo Clo – Dosaggio Zero" Gussago, Lombardy ..... NV 183

Zero sulfur / zero dosage, Alessandra's wines are 100 méthode champenoise so dialed into their provenance of clay and limestone that your mouth will salivate for minutes [if not hours] afterward. With less than a decade of winemaking experience under her wing, Alessandra has already achieved pioneer status within the region as one of the first estates to farm organically and the first to be female-led. The exceptional level of wines produced is mind-melting, especially considering that this is only the beginning.

What is Pét-nat?

Pét-nat, or Méthode Ancestrale, is a method of sparkling wine production used all over the world. Unlike sparkling wines like Champagne, which add sugar and yeast to make dry, still wine which trigger a second fermentation and produce bubbles, Pét-nat works by bottling wine that is only partially fermented.

As the first and only fermentation continues in bottle, the resulting carbon dioxide (CO_2) is trapped. After a period of rest, that can be as short as a couple of months, the gas is absorbed into the wine as bubbles and the Pét-nat is ready to drink.

How Pét-nat Differs From Champagne

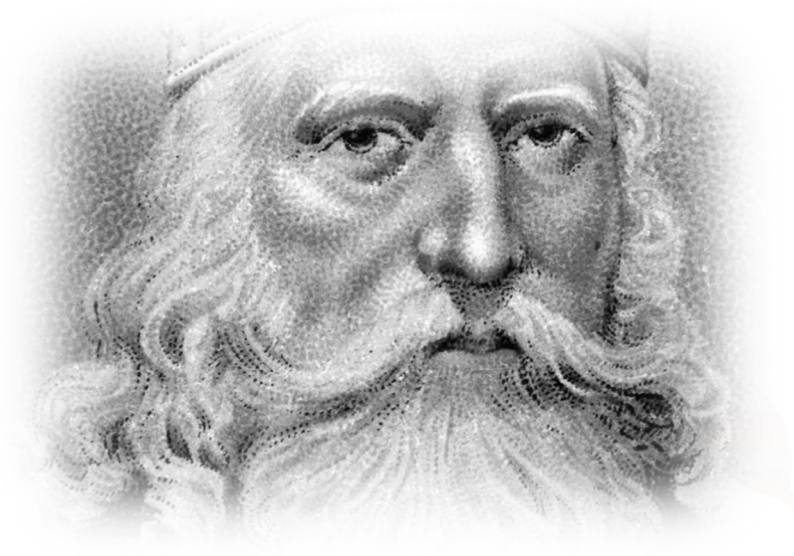
Pét-nat is essentially the easiest method to get bubbles into a wine and it was the first way that sparkling wine was produced, earning it the name Méthode Ancestrale. This is in contrast to the Champagne style, formerly called Méthode Champenoise (a term since banned by the European Union), now primarily known as Méthode Traditonelle, Méthode Classique or simply the "Traditional Method."

Although Champagne is the most famous French region for sparkling wine, there are also esteemed appellations domestically that produce in the Pét-nat style.

White Wine

Tales of the Vine : The King with the Grizzly Beard

Born in 742 and rising to power, as the Holy Roman Emperor and ruler of much of the Western World; it was Emperor Charlemagne who commanded the planting of the Pinot Noir Vine that produce the excellent red Burgundy of Le Corton. It is well-known that Emperor Charlemagne adored the precious red wine of Le Corton, and drank some every day.



However, as the years passed and the king became an older man, his hand was no longer as steady as it once was. From time to time, while enjoying his precious red Burgundy, he would spill some wine onto his flowing white beard. The resulting red stains annoyed his wife to such an extent that she demanded that he stop drinking wine.

Emperor Charlemagne was a wise man, and craftily decided to become a white wine aficionado in order to be able to drink to heart's content without compromising his regal appearance or arousing the wrath of his last and reportedly favorite wife.

Thus, Emperor Charlemagne demanded that part of the hill of Le Corton be replanted with white grapes, and the famous white wine vinyard now known as Corton-Charlemagne came to be. With white wine in hand, Charlemagne was able to drink his beloved wine again, shaky hands, grizzly white beard, and all.

Chardonnay Based - Proprietary Blends [Napa Valley]

Spotlight : What's The Population of Oakville? :

POP 300 is the direct result of growing up in a small town surrounded by legendary farmers and winemakers. It's well known that Oakville produces some of the best Cabernet Sauvignon fruit in the world, but there are also other varietals grown in Oakville, you just have to know someone to find them.... This is a truly unique, six barrel production white blend by Luke Russ, whose day job is a Commercial Director at O'Shaughnessy Winery. It was built around a core Chardonnay and enhanced with Rhône Varietals, and pops ebulliently out of the glass with a firework display of honeydew, Bosc Pear, lemon grass, ginger, and banana cream pie.

Primary Flavors of Riesling

Lime | Green Apple | Beeswax | Jasmine | Petroleum

**

What Is Riesling?

Riesling is an aromatic white grape variety. A common misconception with Riesling is that it's all sweet – however, this is absolutely false. Riesling, especially German Riesling, comes in a wide range of styles that range from bone dry to very sweet. Germany even has their own scale to indicate the risidual sugar [aka the sweetness level] of a German Riesling.

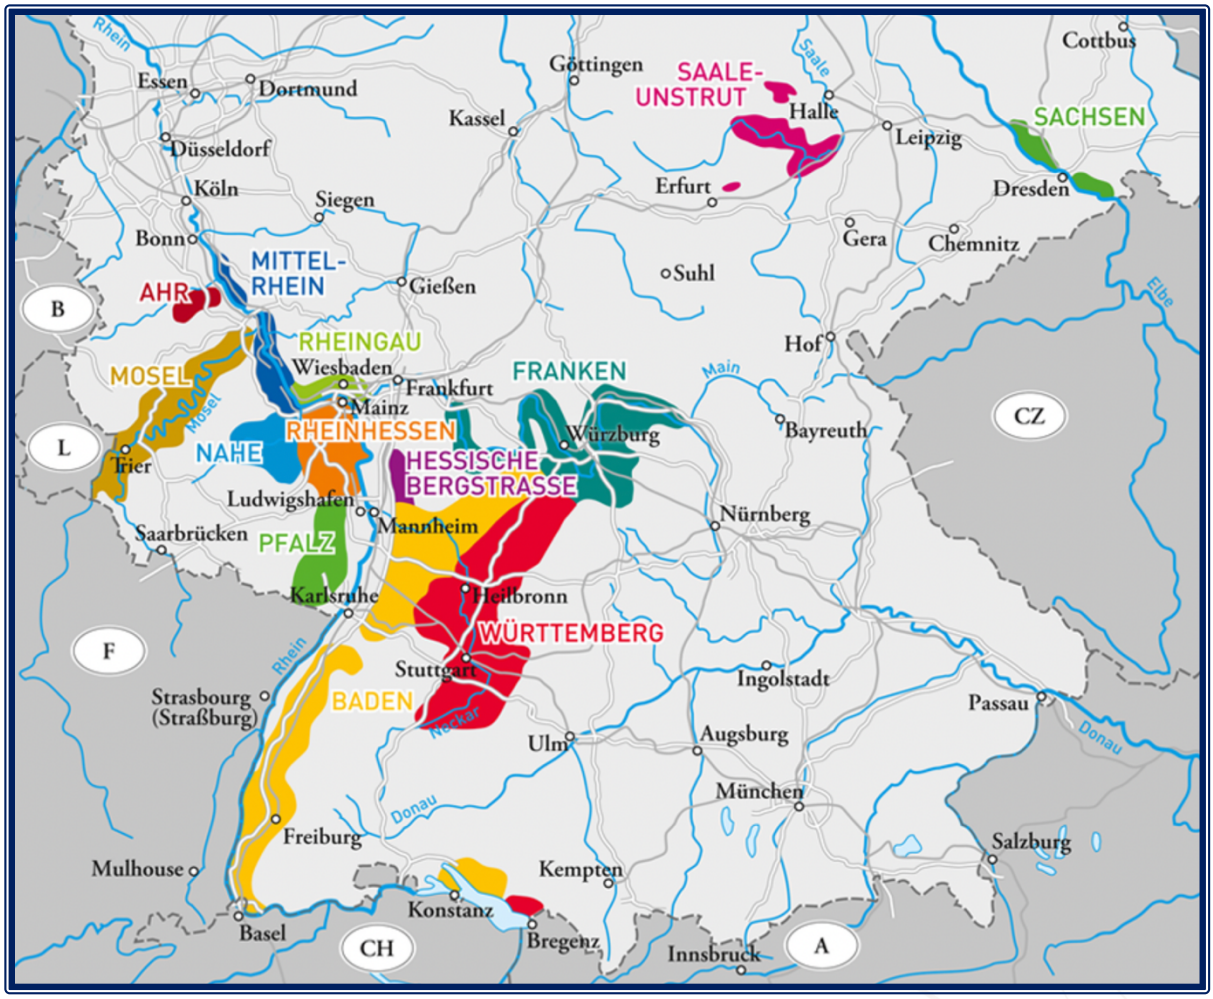
Germany



Mosel-Saar-Ruwer

Regarded as the oldest wine-growing region in Germany, the Mosel is named for the serpentine river. The banks rise so sharply that the vineyards are among the steepest in the world. Some are planted at an astounding 70-degree gradient, such as the famed Bremmer Calmont site. On these inclines, nearly all vines have to be tended to and be picked by hand.

Vineyards along the Mosel River and its tributaries, the Saar and the Ruwer, produce effervescent wines with a fragrance reminiscent of spring blossoms, a pale color, light body, and a refreshing, fruity acidity.

Spotlight : Clemens Busch : Seven Generations

Clemens Busch is the seventh generation in his family to be called Clemens! He broke the tradition by naming his sons Florian and Johannes.

Vinification Notes: Grown in grey slate on the Marienburg. Spontaneously fermented, macerated extra time on the skins, then matured 15 months on the lees in Clemens' big old [50+years] German oak barrels. Unfiltered and unfined. A tiny amount of sulfur was added at bottling, even less than usual. Residual sugar: under 4 g/L. 11.5% alc. Hazy color; "orange wine" in spirit, but fantastically fresh, energetic and delicious.

Spotlight : Dr. Loosen : Exquisite Rieslings from the Steep Slopes of The Middle-Mosel

The Loosen family has been growing Riesling and producing wine in the Mosel valley for over 200 years. The current owner, Ernst "Erni" Loosen, assumed ownership in 1988, embarking on a quest to greatly improve the quality and international reputation of the estate, the Mosel region, the Mosel region, and Riesling in general. Today, Erni is one of the most iconic and influential winemakers in the world. A full range of Riesling styles is produced, following traditions of both family lines: dry wines from the paternal Loosen side, and Prädikat wines inspired by the maternal branch [the Prüm family].

Spotlight : Egon Müller : "I would Consider Egon Müller, without any doubt, Germany's number one Producer"

The Egon Müller estate has been in the hands of the Müller family since 1797. In the Mosel's steep, slate vineyards, the winemaking master Egon Müller makes breathtaking Rieslings. The estate owns 8.3 of the 28 hectares of the famous Scharzhofberg vineyard in Germany's Mosel-Saar-Rewer region. The family exploits their single-vineyard holdings to the fullest, and consequently is ranked among the region's top wine producers. These wines are taut and racy, with dazzling fruit; they're severely mineral and have an endless finish.

Egon Müller's wines are all made using estate-grown fruit from two parcels: 8.3 hectares of Scharzhof and 4 hectares of Le Gallais. The Scharzhofberg, or Scharzhof Mountain, is among the finest Riesling sites in Germany and is considered Grand Cru. As such, it is allowed to be labeled with its vineyard name, or "Einzellage", rather than its village name. The Müller holdings here include a parcel of un-grafted wines that were planted in the 19th century. These wines deliver at the highest level of quality and are without question among the world's great wines. They are fine, balanced, authentic, and enjoyable young as well as after many years of cellaring.

Egon Müller also belongs to Primum Familiae Vini, [The First Families of Wine], a small group of elite, family-owned producers where he is the only German member. Other Members include: Château Mouton-Rothschild, Domaine Joseph Drouhin, Jaboulet, Pol Roger, Symington, Vega Sicilia, Hugel, Miguel Torres, Antinori and Robert Mondavi.

Spotlight : Karthäuserhof : 800 Years of Winegrowing history

The vineyards of Eitelsbach, named after a nearby tributary of the Ruwer, were first mentioned in writings circa 1223. over a hundred years later, in 1335, Prince-Elector Balduin of Luxembourg gifted an estate on the land of the monks of the Carthusian order. The monks founded it as an official winegrowing estate and cultivated wine for almost 500 years. By 1803 the estate was secularized and passed into the hands of the French government

GG

Spotlight : "Grosses Gewächs" Explained

The Term Grosses Gewächs is used to identify some of the finest white wines of Germany and is specific to dry wines.

- The designation is not an official part of German Wine Law but was conceived by a group of top producers in the early 2000s and refined as recently as 2012 as part of a plan to identify the best vineyard sites.
- More than half of "GG" vineyards are planted to Riesling, according to the Court of Master Sommeliers.
- All Grosses Gewächs comes from a Grosses lage ["great site"], the best vineyards according to the German VDP classification system that is overseen by a group of producers called the Verband Deutscher Prädikatsweingüter [VDP].
- Like the grand crus of Burgundy, these wines take the name of the vineyard and not the village. But the VDP is an invitation-only, industry body numbering around 200 producers and, as stated above, it's rules, therefore, not officially part of German wine law.
- To make the GG grade, yields must not exceed 50 hectoliters per hectare, and the grapes must be physiologically fully ripe and also hand harvested.
- Referred to as simply "GG" on labels, these
- wines are released on September 1st of the year after harvest.
- In Rheingau, the term "Erstes Gewächs" denotes a top vineyard site and is a legally defined term.

Rheinhessen

Germany largest wine region, Rheinhessen, lies in a valley of gentle rolling hills. Grapevines are one of many crops that share the fertile soils of this region's vast farmlands. Varied soils and the favorable climate make it possible to grow many grape varieties, old and new. In fact, many of Germany's aromatic, early-ripening new crossings were bred in Rheinhessen by Professor Georg Scheu [pronounced "shoy"]. after whom the Scheurbe grape is named. Rheinhessen wines are often characterized as being soft, fragrant, medium-bodied and mild in acidity – pleasant, easy-to-drink wines. There are also wines of great class and elegance, with a depth and complexity second to none.

Spotlight : Keller : "German Montrachets"

"If I had to choose one wine to show how great dry German Riesling can be I would choose a Keller Riesling. Those wines are the German Montrachets" – Jancis Robinson, 2008

Yet it's been many years since Jancis penned that now-famous quote in the Financial Times and it's not like the estate has lost an steam. Klaus Peter and Julia Keller have achieved a level of fame comparable only to Egon Müller in the Saar. In less than a decade, Keller has become one of the country's greatest addresses. What makes this even more intriguing is that Keller is located in the Rheinhessen, one of the most maligned German winemaking regions. What's more, they are located in what is usually considered the worst part of the Rheinhessen, the "Hügelland" – a double whammy if ever there was one.

Yet Keller has inspired an entire generation of young winemakers and single-handedly given birth to a renaissance in the Rheinhessen. Storied vineyards that were all but forsaken – Kirchspiel, Hubaker, Morstein and Abtserde to name a few – are now seen as holy ground for Riesling and command some of the highest prices for dry wines in Germany.

Keller's grand cru Rieslings are larger-than-life wines of incredible density and power; they are thoroughbreds. Yet what no one does better than Keller is to shape this considerable intensity into a form that is elegant, finessed – beautiful. Yes, Keller GG is incredibly concentrated, lavish with detailed fruit, yet the minerality, the clarity, the form is what makes these wines unforgettable.

Rheingau

The Rheingau is one of the most distinguished wine regions of the world. Queen Victoria's enthusiasm for Hochheim's wine contributed to their popularity in England where Rhone wines were referred to as Hock. The world-renowned oenological research and teaching institutes in Geisenheim, have contributed significantly to the German wine industry today.

The first Spätlese ["Late Harvest"] Riesling was produced in the Rheingau in 1775. A courier, sent by the prince, to deliver permission to begin the grape harvest was delayed by several weeks. During which time, noble rot increased the sugar levels of the grapes, producing a rich, luscious style of Riesling. From then on, vintners deliberately dedicated a portion of their harvest to be picked later in the season to allow for botrytis.

Spotlight : Schloss Johannisberg
The First Riesling Winery in the World - 1200 Years of Winegrowing History

Since 1720, only Riesling has been cultivated at Schloss Johannisberg. This is the birthplace of one of the oldest and noblest grape varieties in the world. The long history of Schloss Johannisberg brims with passion, responsibility and pride - allowing the production of an outstanding Riesling. It inspires people to make it.

Nahe

Although the Nahe is one of the smaller German wine regions, it's extraordinary range of soil types is second to none. For this reason, the region is able to produce quite diverse wines from relatively few grape varieties. The steeper sites of volcanic or weathered stone, and those with red, clayish slate seem predestined for elegant, piquant Riesling wines of great finesse and a light spiciness, flatter sites of loam, loess, and sandy soils yield lighter, fragrant Müller-Thurgau [Rivaner] wines with a flowery note. Silvaner grape thrives in a number of soils and produces full-boded, earthy wines.

Pfalz

The Pfalz is one of Germany's largest regions [and Germany's largest red wine region], producing every third bottle of German wine purchased domestically. The word Pfalz is a derivation of the Latin word Palatium, meaning palace. The English equivalent, Palatinate, is sometimes used to refer to the Pfalz. Pleasant, mild white wines rich in bouquet and full of body are produced from Riesling and Müller-Thurgau grapes in the Pfalz. While deep colored and quite complex red wines are made from Dornfelder grapes.

The pfalz is home to the world's largest wine barrel, the world's largest wine festival [in Bad Dürkheim], the world's oldest wine in the Palatinate Historical Museum, and the first and best known wine route, the German Wine Road.

Spotlight : Müller-Ruprecht : A Style Hard to place

The Incisive yet grand GGs of Ökonomierat Rebholz are perhaps the easiest comparison. Both estates showhow focus the power of the Pfalz, shape the sunshine-filled landscape into wines of delineation and lift. Yet the Müller-Ruprecht wines are somehow perhaps bouncier – airier? The feel a shade lighter?

The Comparison doesn't exactly capture the energy here; the style feels unique. Which is why Müller-Puprecht is quickly becoming one of the most talked-about estates in Germany.

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2015 177

The 2015 shows the ripeness and power of the vintage, with dark citrus fruits and melon. There is a glycerin-rich feel to the wine, yet it is edged by spice and has great structure. THis is definitely the most mature of the wines, entering a perfect drinking window.

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2016 162

What an overlooked vintage 2016 is – in the best wines [like this] the vintage's delicacy and finesse shines through. This is a joy to drink, with a fresh quinine-like quality to it, like the greatest gin and tonic you've ever had. Profoundly mineral, with salt and an almost liquified rock quality. Stunning wine.

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2017 158

This is a monument and one of my favorite vintages. Right now, the wine is profoundly coiled up, inward-looking and compact. Yet you can feel the density and the structure. this is a laser of mineral. Cellar as long as you can, decant, or open two days before drinking!

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2018 144

This is superb! Even after the 2017 this feels super fresh. Philipp says the 2018 came in with enormous reduction and lots of tannins. Well, this has all resolved itself because the wine is now soaring. It is slightly broader than the 2017, yet tasting this blind one might still think it was a cooler vintage – the acids and energy are excellent.

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2020 139

One of my favorite vintages – the wines are all so open and delicious… and this is in the general framework, yet more precise and delineated. After going through five vintages there really is a distinct minerality, salty and glycerin rich (which I often associate with limestone) yet with this liquified rock quality that almost feels metamorphic. Superb.

Unavailable ○ | Müller-Ruprecht Saumagen "N" Troken 2021 135

Profound young wine; reminds me of the 2017 with a dash of the 2020. It has the linear quality and the delicacy of the 2017, yet it's more open and generous right now than the 2017. Perhaps this is still in a friendly phase – drink now or hold for a while!

Franken

The finest Franken wines are traditionally bottled in a Bocksbeutel, a squat green or brown flagon with a round body and short neck. It lends considerable recognition value to the region's wines.

Würzberg is home of the famed vineyard Stein, which gave rise to the generic term Steinwein, formerly used to denote all Franken wines. Franconian wines are generally fuller-bodeied, less aromatic, often drier, firmer, and earthier.

Trebbiano d'Abruzzo

Ian d'Agata describes good Trebbiano Abruzzese as having "just a hint of white flowers and stone fruit on the nose, a creamy mouthfeel, and plenty of acidity with a citrusy minerality", which is perfect for the younger bottlings. When aged, Pepe's Trebbiano has the complex aroma and balanced texture of very good white Burgudny, with notes of lemon-peel, parmesan rind, herbs, and baked apple. Italy makes relatively few classic ageworth white wines, and this is one of them.

A very brief history…

About 200 million years ago, the region was part of a vast, tropical sea. Time transformed the seabed into limestone soils. These soils are the secret behind the zesty minerality that's the hallmark of Burgundy wines. If you venture into the vineyards, you can find chucks of limestone or marl [limestone mixed with clay], that contain fascinating fossilized sea creatures.

Winemaking goes back to the romans in the 1st century AD, but it was the Catholic monks that really established the vineyards in the Middle Ages. These guys grew the grapes for the church and the aristocratic Dukes of Burgundy. The French Revolution returned the vineyards to the people who, today, pride themselves on their attachment to the land. The personal relationship to the land has inspired growth in organic and biodynamic viticulture and winemaking.

Chablis

The Region's Biggest Appellation

With a light hue of golden straw or greenish-gold; this white wine has a very fresh, bright and mineral nose. One can find flint, green apples and lemon, with notes of undergrowth and mousseron or Fairy Ring mushrooms. Other aromas often include linen, mint, acacia, licorice and freshly-cut hay. Aging turns the wine more golden and tends to bring out spicy notes. On the palate, the aromas persist at length, thanks to their crispness and purity. Dry and wonderfully sophisticated, Chablis has a unique personality and is easily identifiable.

The name "Chablis" is usurped around the world by wines which have no right to use it. So be aware: there is only one true Chablis and it comes from Bourgogne!

Chablis Premier Cru

White wines that are structured with good length

The various Climats bring their own character to the resulting wine. Depending on the soil and the aspect; they are all structured and long in the mouth. From the more mineral, which are closed when younger, to the more floral, which develop delicate, subtle aromas. The Climats of Chablis Premier Cru enchant the palate. Behind their pale golden appearance, the nose does not immediately express all its potential, and requires a little aeration. This is a wine for ageing, from 5 to 10 years.

40 Climats can be associated with the label Chablis Premier Cru, including 17 main "Flag-bearing' Climats.

Chablis

One Grand Cru Seven Climats [Named Vineayrd]

Total Area in Production : 105.79 ha.

Blanchots

This Climat of Chablis Grand Cru is named after the light color of its soil and subsoil.

Blanchot stretches over 12.39 hectares, on the east of the Grand appellation. This complex terroir is known for being difficult to work. It faces east and southeast, with it's sun exposure somewhat limited. Despite only benefitting from the morning sun before it disappears, Blanchot remains, paradoxically, a warm terroir. Its steep slope and sheltered location result in slow-ripening conditions, with a harvest that generally starts well after that of its neighbor, Le Clos. In some places, poor clays with shells, stones, or even blue and green sticky draining clays replace the Kimmeridgian limestone in the subsoil.

Bougros

Slightly off to the side, this Climat's appearance is most unusual

Lying to the west of the Chablis Grand Cru appellation, Bougros's 15.79 hectares are sheltered from the wind. They extend over a large southwest-facing terrace at the top and over a steeper south-facing slope towards the bottom. This hillside positioning is particularly in its favor, as the hours soaking in the sun are intense. Although the soils are naturally draining, the unique layout of this Climat becomes obvious from a geological point of view on the hillside, the soil is quite poor, whereas on the terrace, in the upper part, it becomes deeper, with increasing clay and marls.

Les Clos

Covering over 26 hectares, Le Clos is the biggest of the seven Climats in the Chablis Grand Cru appellation

With its 28.39 hectares, it is the largest Climat in the Chablis Grans Cru appellation. It stretches over its hillside, from top to bottom, enjoying a southwest exposure. This exceptional terroir is therefore bathed in sunshine from noon to evening. This perfect sun exposure, combined with a relatively steep slope, provides ideal ripening conditions. Because of its size, Les Clos' soil is multi-faceted: towards the top, stones and limestone become more prevalent, whereas towards the bottom, on the contrary, it gets deeper and has more clay.

Les Preuses

Famous for its minerality, this Climat of Chablis Grand Cru takes its name from the word "pierre" [stone].

Overlooking the Chablis valley, Chablis Grand Cru Preuses is quite imposing. Its 10.8 hectares, facing south and southwest, are bathed in sunlight for most of the day. In the summer, they take advantage of the last rays until late in the evening. On the surface, the soils are predominantly clay-limnestone and brown in color, although some plots are covered with white, thinner clays.

Spotlight : The Eighth Grand Cru Climat : Moutonne – Monopole

"La Moutonne" is a vineyard at the heart of the Grand Cru sector of the historic age-old Chablis wine country. It's shape and ideal location make it a natural solar receptor. Sitting 95% in Vaudésir" and 5% in "Le Preuses" [formerly owned by the Pontigny monks], "La Moutonne" is a monopole. Domaine Long-Depaquit is the sole owner. With its south/south-eastern expossure and a steep slope of almost 40%, this vineyard is protected from north winds.

Valmur

A Climat of the Chablis Grand Cru appellation, Valmur takes its name from walls and brambles.

Valmur appellation covers 11.04 hectares. Shaped like an amphitheater, it enjoys an exposure going south to west. Because of this particular shape, it soaks in the sun during the hottest hours of the day. An area facing northwest adds a fresh quality, as well as a later maturity. Sitting on Kimmeridgian marl, the soil does show some disparities – the soil at the bottom is deep and brown, while the soil higher up is thin and white. At the top of Valmur, the marl outcrops.

Vaudésir

Such a charming name for a Chablis Grand Cru that has always has this name.

Vaudésir is nestled in a natural amphitheater, and covers 14.49 hectares. It benefits from double exposure similar to that of Valmur. The south-facing slope, which lies in a small sheltered valley, provides optimal ripening conditons. The north-facing slope, is cooler and the grapes often mature later. Here, more than anywhere else, the orientation of the vineyards play a key role in defining the style of the wines. It's soil contains a significant amount of clay. The subsoil remains classic with Kimmeridgian marly limestone.

Sportlight: Regional Appellations of Burgundy [White]

Bourgogne Blanc [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION: 854.19 ha - approx.

SITUATION: Bourgogne Blanc is a success story. It brings out the best of the Chardonnay grape, whose native home is Bourgogne and which finds its most sublime expression [Montrachet, Meursault, Chablis, Corton-Charlemagne, Pouilly-Fuissé…]. The Bourgogne AOC, authorized in 1937, extends to the three departments of Yonne, Côte-d'or and Saône-et-Loire.

This entry level wine opens the way to the appellations Villages, Premiers Crus and Grands Crus. Though the raw material is the same in all cases, the Chardonnay grape creates a diverse spectrum of sensations, which vary, according to its provenance, the age of the vines, and the vintage.

TERROIR: This wine is mostly grown on sites at the foot of the slopes, but the nature of the soil varies according to each geographical situation. In the Côte-d'Or the soils are whitish or light grey marls and marly limestones, deep and not especially stony. The Yonne, in contrast, offers sloping calcareous sites, sometimes chalky as in the Tonnerrois district or on Kimmeridgian limestone as in CHablis and the Auxerrois, while in the Côte Chalonnaise and Mâconnais the broken landscape begets soils composed of limestone, clay and marl, and in the southern Saône-et-Loire, a granitic component.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: Color is light golden, limpid and crystalline, often with greenish highlights. In the Yonne, Bourgogne Blanc often develops aromas of gunflint or field mushroom. In the Côte-d'Or it is hazelnut with a hint of honey, butter, bracken, spices and sugared chestnuts. In the Saône-et-Loire, notes of white flowers [hawthorn, acacia] and flint abound. On the palate it is aromatic, delicate, light, full without being heavy, unctuous and firm, dry and caressing, well-rounded and quite deep, not overly structured yet persistent.

Comprised of rare Pinot Blanc in Burgundy [from a third of a hectare of old vines planted over 70 years ago by Jérôme's grandfather near their home in the village of Prémeaux-Prissey] Blended with around one-quarter Chardonnay from the lieu-dit of Aux Cachottes at the southern end of Prémeaux, below Clos de la Maréchale and Les Vignottes. Though clearly expressing the underlying limestone, its fruit tends to be more pit-fruit-driven, slightly waxier, and with a whiff of exotic flowers not typically associated with Côte d'Or Chardonnay. The old vines lend body to this typically lightweight varietal, making it suitable for barrel fermentation and ageing [with no new oka]. Given the low yeilds, only a handful of barrels are produced each vintage

Bourgogne Aligoté [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION: 113.95 ha

SITUATION: The Aligoté grape has been grown in Bourgogne since the 17th century and flourishes here. Whether from the Saône-et-Loire, the Côte-d'Or or the Yonne, it faithfully reflects the diversity of its terroirs. It was granted its own AOC, Bourgogne Aligoté, in 1937.

TERROIR: Although it is planted in very different winegrowing areas, the Aligoté grape is generally found on limestone soils, often combined with marl or clay. Aligoté is alos suited to hilly locations and higher altitudes.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS: Bourgogne Aligoté is a delicious white wine that is young, stylish and a little different. It is pale gold in color and offers a well-balanced taste, that ranges from a fruity bouquet with notes of apple and lemon to a more floral palette. In the mouth, this vibrant wine tickles the taste buds.

Bourgogne - Côtes d'Auxerre [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION: 1,577.19 ha

SITUATION: The Auxerre vineyards (pronounced "Ausserre"), lying n either side of the river Yonne, boast ancient lineage, thanks to the abbey of Saint-Germain and a proximity to Paris.

Today they are very much alive. In 1993, wines from the communes of Auxerre, Vaux, Champs-sur-Yonne, Augy, Quenne, Saint-Brisle-Vineux and Vincelottes were granted the right to add a local identifier to the appelation Régionale Bourgogne.

In any case, these vineyards continue to have their own personality.

TERROIR: These vineyards form part of Bourgogne's "golden gate", lying as they do on Jurassic limestones (Kimmeridgian and Portlandian).

WINE CHARACTERISTICS: Gleaming and golden, sometimes with greenish highlights. The attack reveals aromas of almond, hazelnut and white flowers. A likeable wine which rapidly gains in power and elegant minerality. As it evolves it develops naunces of dried fruits and underbrush along with real aromatic richness.

Bourgogne - Hautes Côtes de Beaune [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 165.62 ha – approx.

SITUATION: The vines are located at the foot of the limestone cliff, on the sunny slopes of a ribbon of valleys, perpendicular to the Côte de Beaune, from Les Maranges to Ladoix-Serrigny heading west.

Wine from the Hautes Côtes de Beaune was enjoyed at the coronation of Philippe Auguste in 1180.

The vines underwent a period of expansion, linked to economic growth throughout the 19th century, until phylloxera struck.

Its renaissance stemmed from the reestablishment of the winegrowers union of the Hautes Côtes de Beaune in 1945, which was responsible for the creation of the appellation on August 4th, 1961.

TERROIR: The vines of Bourgogne – Hautes Côtes de Beaune grow on the south- and southeast-facing slopes of valleys cut into the limestone plateaus at between 290-485m above sea level, between 100-200m higher than the Côte de Beaune, which results in slightly later maturing and harvesting on average around one week later. The soil is made up of formations laid down 80 million years ago during the Trias [sandstone and clay] and the Jurassic [marl and limestone].

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: This wine is intense pale yellow or pale-yellow gold, with green-yellow silvery hints and a fluid aspect. On the nose are notes of acacia, hawthorn, lemon, quince, apple, pear, white peaches, and almond, with touches of pepper, licorice, and honeysuckle. On the palate, they are fresh and balanced, with fleshy fruit, and underscored by a subtle marly mainerality. The melting, saline finish is light, with aromas of lemon, mandarin, and white-fleshed fruit.

Bourgogne - Hautes Côtes de Nuits [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION: 147.85 ha – approx.

SITUATION: At one time, apparently doomed to disappear, these vineyards have undergone a patient, courageous , and ultimately successful restoration. Overlooking the slopes of Gevrey-Chambertin and extending as far as the wood of Corton the Bourgogne - Hautes Côtes de Nuits have a wild beauty.

TERROIR: The vineyards are located at heights of between 300 and 400 meters and occupy the sides of valleys which cut into the Jurassic limestone plateau to the west of the Côte. The underlying rock is the same as that of the Côte but the overburden in thin or non-existent. The soils are formed by a mixture of eroded limestone and marly subsoil.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS: The whites [Chardonnay, or very rarely Pinot Blanc or Pinot Gris] are white-gold to pale gold in color, or, if aged in barrel, yellow gold. Note of hawthorn and honeysuckle mingle with apple, lemon, white dead-nettle and hazelnut. In the mouth, they are fleshy, solidly built, well-balanced, and with an easily-recognizable touch of friskiness which imporves their aging potential.

Bourgogne Tonnerre [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION: 57.36 ha

SITUATION: The vineyard of Bourgogne Tonnerre is located on hillsides on either side of the river Armançon, a tributary of the river Yonne.

From the 10th century onwards, the monks of the abbeys of Quinncy, near Tanlay, and Saint Michel, near Tonnerre, intensified and improved wine-growing practices. The Knight of Éon, a noble from Tonnerrre and diplomat under Louis XV, also used wines from Tonnerre to loosen tongues in capital cities across Europe.

Since 1987, men and women have been breathing new life into this ancient winegrowing region.

TERROIR: The vineyard of Bourgogne Tonnerre is mainly located at the entrance to several southeast-facing valleys, at between 200-300m above sea level.

The Chardonnay grape flourishes on marl-limestone formations from the Kimmeridgean and limestone from the Portlandian eras, laid down between 152-142 million years ago, during the Upper Jurassic. It is this geology that is responsible for the light-colored pebbly soil.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS: The wines are yellow or pale green, with hints of silver. The nose recalls lemon zest, acacia blossom, pear, peach, fennel, stone fruits, almond, and sometimes, with notes of pineapple and passion fruit. It is fleshy in the mouth, with good length punctuated by touches of saline, lemon, aniseed, and licorice aromas. These wines are balanced, rounded, smooth, and mineral, with a velvety sensation mid-palate.

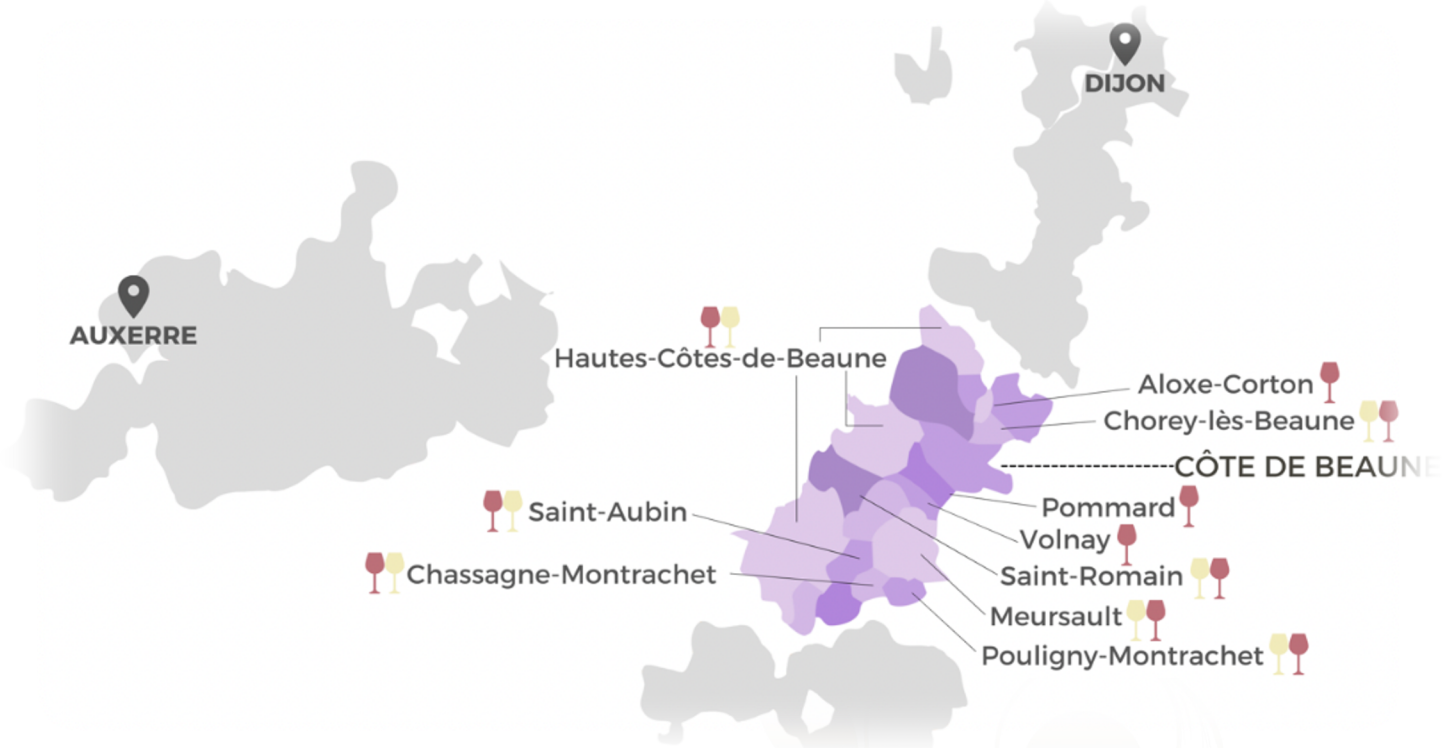
Côte de Beaune



Spotlight : Climats & Lieux-Dits of Bourgogne : Names With Multiple Origins

What Is a Climat?

- The word Climat is a typically Burgundian term. It comes from the Greek work kilma, and then the latin clima, climatis, meaning "slope".
- Each Climat in the Bourgogne winegrowing region is a plot of vines that has been carefully marked out and named from centuries, and which have their own history and enjoy particular geological and weather conditions.
- Shaped by winegrowers, these plots that favor the great winegrowing varietals like Pinot Noir for red wines and Chardonnay for whites together form an exceptional patchwork of ranked appellations that enjoy a global reputation, including Régionale, Village, Premier Cru, and Grand Cru appellations.
- Certain Climats have enjoyed their reputations since as far back as the 7TH century, such as the Clos de Bèze in Gevrey.
- The Climats are the source of the unique organoleptic qualities of Bourgogne wines, including their appearance, aromas, taste, and mouthfeel.

What About Lieux-Dits?

A lieu-dit is a plot of land whose name refers to something precise in either historical or topographical terms. It is purely geographical and corresponds to a clearly defined area. A Climat can refer to a lieu-dit, to just a part of a lieu-dit, or even several lieux-dits grouped together.

Example

Aloxe-Corton

2	14	15

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 1.36 ha [including 0.27 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Linking the Côte de Nuits with the Côte de Beaune, the hill of Corton signals a change in the landscape. Towards Beaune the land becomes more rounded, its sharp contours yielding to gentle valleys. Like its neighbours Ladoix-Serrigny and Pernand-Vergelesses, Aloxe-Corton [pronounced "Alosse"] enjoys a perfect wine-growing location and forms as it were a guard of honour on the approach to the prestigious appellations Grands Crus Corton and Corton-Charlemagne. The Appellation d'Origine Contrôlée dates back to 1938.

TERROIR: A Cross section of the Corton hill reveals a classic geological picture. At altitudes of between 200 and 300 meters, the soil is reddish brown with flint and limestone debris [known as "chaillots"] mixed in, and is rich in potassium and phosphoric acid. The vines face due east. Wines from the Northern end are more tender and fruity while those from the Southern end are firmer and more complex. Pebbly soil favors supple, highly-bred wines, while clay and marl breeds firmness and complexity.

Auxey-Duresses

0 9 36

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 49.36 ha [including 3.47 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Auxey-Duresses [pronounced "Aussey"] stands at the entrance to a valley, which runs from the Côte de Beaune into the Hautes Côtes, following the road that leads from Beaune to Autun amongst hump-backed hillsides. Together with its hamlets of Petit-Auxey and Mélian, Auxey-Duresses is incontestably one of Bourgogne's Celtic and Gallo-Roman winegrowing districts. It was formerly an outlying property of the abbey of Cluny, producing both grains and grapes. The cornmills have now gone but there are still wine presses. Auxey-Duresses was granted its AOC status in 1937.

TERROIR: Nature determins which plots suit the white wines and which the reds. On the hill of Bourdon, geolically an extension of Volnay and Monthélie, the soil is a pebbly marl limestone mix which gives vigor to the east/south-east facing vineyard of Duresses. The Climat "Climat du Val", on the other hand, faces south and has very limey soil, while in La Chapelle, marl predominates over limestone. On the hill of Mélian, the fine-textured soil prefigures that of nearby Meursault and Puligny, the paradise of white wines.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: The eye is caught by its pale straw color and crystal clarity; matching its aromas of fresh alomond and apple, to which there are added biscuity and mineral [gunflint] notes. It tickles the palate in an agreeable fashion – sprightly when young, fuller and meatier with age, but always with good aromatic persistence.

Beaune

0 42 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 58.43 ha [including 39.67 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: A burgundian icon and capital of Bourgogne's wine trade, Beaune takes center place on the world stage during the annual Hospices de Beaune wine auction.

The Hôtel-Dieu, built in the Flamboyant style, the huge silent cellars of the négociants houses, and the wine-growing domaines of the district all attract countless visitors. The Beaune vineyards are among the most extensive of the Côte. From here comes the Pinot vermilion of the Dukes of Bourgogne – a red wine, aromatic and full of fire, whose reputation goes back to the late Middle Ages. The whites, less common, make the best use of soils suited to the Chardonnay grape. The Beaune AOC was established in 1936.

TERROIR: In the Syncliinal of Volnay, the Comblanchien limestone disappears into the depths to be replaced by the overlying Rauracian. The slopes are quite steep and the soil [scree-derived black rendzinas] thinnish. On the lower slopes, there are Argovian marls and deep soils, white, grey or yellow, tinged with red from the iron in the Oxfodian limestone. At the foot of the slope, Limestones are mixed with clay. Exposure: east to due south. Altitude: 220 to 300 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: This wine boasts a silky gold color, flecked with green. It has a bouquet of almond, dried fruits, bracken, and white flowers. It may be enjoyed either young "on the fruit" or later for its mouth-filling mellowness.

Chassagne-Montrachet

3 55 46

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 215.93 ha [including 118.66 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: In the southern part of the Côte de Beaune, Chassagne-Montrachet shares with Puligny the uncontested title of the prince of the world's dry white wines: the divine Montrachet [pronounced "Monrachay"]. This fine, broad hillside brings out the very highest expression of the two Burgundian grapes – the Pinot Noir and the Chardonnay. They grow here side-by-side – such is the complexity of the region's soils! Extensive marble quarries, which form a cliff face, where the source of the pink and beige flagstones that went into the building of the Trocadero in Paris and more recently the Louvre Pyramid. The Chassagne-Montrachet AOC dates from 1937. It includes some plots in the neighboring village of Remigny which share the same soil conditions.

TERROIR: At altitudes between 220 and 325 Meters, the succession of rocks from the top down is first rauracien, then callovien, and finally argovien. The soil of the various Climats [named plots with distinctive qualities] ranges from pebbly limestones, through marls, to sandy soils with a Jurassic basis.

Ladoix

0 11 38

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 34.22 ha [including 8.91 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: If you are coming from Dijon, it is at Ladoix that the Côte de Beaune begins. Ladoix shares with Aloxe-Corton and Pernand-Vergelesses the honour of producing that famous wines of the hill of Corton. The appellation was instituted in 1937. The vineyards grow red or white wines according to whether the soils best suits the Pinot Noir or the Chardonnay grape.

TERROIR: The soils of the upper slopes are pebblyand reddish [iron-rich olite] with a high limestone content and quite marly. These suit great white wines. Mid-slope, reddish-borwn calcareous soils with abundant limestone debris grow full-bodied and flamboyant red wines. Clayey soils at the foot of the slopes take away some of their fire. Exposures: easterly or South-East to South. Altitude: 230 to 325 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: These are gold or pale straw color. Their aromas lean towards acacia with often a buttery grace note. They boast a classic bouquet featuring plum, ripe apple, quince, fig, or spiced pear. They are lively and firm, but with their impulses well under control. This is a wine whose fat is balanced by freshness and spontaneity. It gains in mellowness with time.

Meursault

0 19 52

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 381.04 ha [including 107.37 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: The hard Comblanchian limestone which disappears deep underground around Nuits-Saint-Georges reappears here, where, as one moves southward, red wines give way to whites. Nowhere in the Côte de Beaune does the Chardonnay grape do better than it does here. Along the village streets, are a succession of little houses belonging to the vineyard workers, mixed with more imposing dwellings. The stone-work on the 53 meter-high church tower looks like it could be the work of fairies. The excellent soils were planted with vines by the monks of Cîteaux as early as 1098. A small amount of red wine is produced here, though white definitely dominates. Meursault's appellation of origin status dates from 1937.

TERROIR: The best soils are found at heights of 260 meters with exposures along an arc between East and South. They consist of Jurassic marls and marly limestones.

There are some patches of magnesian limestone. The ancient callovien limestone and argovien marls shave the crus.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: There are observable but minor differences between the wines of the different Climats, In most cases, Meursault is green-gold in color or canary yellow, leaning towards bronze as it ages. Limpid and brilliant, it sometimes exhibits silvery highlights. Its bouquet has strong aroms of ripe grapes. The young wine is redolent of toasted almonds and hazelnuts in a floral [mayflower, elder, bracken, lime, verbena] and mineral [flint] setting. Butter, honey, and citrus fruits are also present. On the palate, it is rich and fat with a cheerful and appealing taste of hazelnut. Unctuousness and freshness are in silky balance. Long and structured, it needs time to mature – this is a great white wine for laying down.

Pernand-Vergelesses

3 8 13

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 65.13 ha [including 19.45 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Pernand-Vergelesses is tucked into the junction of two valleys among the hills of the Côte de Beaune. The nearby Hill of Corton stands guard over it, and two other villages, Aloxe-Corton and Ladoix-Serrigny, harboring prestigious Grands Crus: Corton in red and Corton-Charlemagne in white. Pernand, with its sloping site and steep streets has a smiling face. It has an important place in French culturalhistory: Jacques Copeau [1879-1949], a driving force behind the French theatrical renaissance of the 1920's and promter of a "decentralized" dramatic tradition, spent a large part of his life here. Pernand saw the genesis of the "Copiaus", a group of great actors whose work and whose spirit still lives on today

TERROIR: Most of the vineyards face East or South with a few facing North-East. Altitudes: 250-300 meters. On the lower slopes are clayey-limestone soils mixed with "Chaillots" [flinty residues from silcaceous limestones]. These soils are easily worked and rich in potassium and phosphoric acid. Mid-slope, the pebbly limestone souls suit the Pinot Noir. At the top, the brown or yellowish marly soil harbours the Chardonnay.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: This wine is white gold or pale yellow turning darker gold with age. It boasts aromas of white flowers, [may, acacia] at first. Then later, notes of amber, honey and spices. On the palate it is mineral, harmonious and easy to like.

Puligny-Montrachet

4 17 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 95.02 ha [including 90.97 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Puligny-Montrachet, along with Chassagne, is the most perfect expression of the Chardonnay grape. The appellation was created in 1937 on soils separated by only a few meters from the Grands Crus. The white wines have well-defined personalities and an established reputation. The plots which adjoin the hamlet of Blagny produce an excellent red wine from the Pinot Noir grape.

TERROIR: The vines in many cases occupy brown limestone soils, or soils where limestone alternates with marls and limey-clays. Soils are deep in some places. In others, the rock is exposed at the surface. Where there are clayey alluvia, these are coarser higher up and finer at the foot of the slope. Exposures East and South-East. Altitude 230 -320 Meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: This wine is a bright gold color with greenish highlights, becoming more intense with age. The bouquet brings together hawthorn blossoms, ripe grapes, marzipan, hazelnut, amber, lemon-grass and green apple. Milky [buttered, hot croissant] and mineral aromas [flint] are commonplace, as is honey. Body and bouquet blend into a subtle harmony. This wine combines grace with a well defined character and a remarkable concentration.

Saint-Aubin

0 22 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 137.60 ha [including 102.55 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: A close Neighbour of Montrachet, lying between Chassagne and Puligny, Saint-Aubin is a wine-growing village in the outhern part of the Côte de Beaune, the hearland of the great white Bourgogne wines. The area covered by the appellation Village includes 30 Premiers Crus Climats. The neighbouring hamlet of Gamay may have given its name to the Gamay grape. The 13TH century fortress stands on solid rock from which it seems to draw its strength as the vine draws sap from the soil. THe appellation was granted recognition in 1937.

TERROIR: The white grapes grow on white clays with a high limestone content, the reds prefer brownish clays. The slopes are steep in places and face East or southeast. Altitude varies between 300 and 350 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: Saint-Aubin is the color of sunshine, with golden highlights whose exact shade varies according to where it is grown and in what year. When young, it combines aromas of white flowers, flint, green almond, and orange flower. Richer fragrances come with age: beeswax and honey, marzipan, ambergris, and cinnamon. This is a firm and flattering wine – a bit sharp to start with, but which becomes fleshier and fuller with time. This is a wine with real breeding.

Saint-Romain

4 17 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 69.51 ha

SITUATION: Saint-Romain in the Côte de Beaune stands at the foot of a high cliff but at an elevation which enables it to look out over a wide stretch of countryside. 100,000 years ago, bears and lions roamed here and it has been a focus of humman activity since neolithic times. It was one of the first places in Bourgogne where Celts and Gallo-Romans cultivated the vine. The appellation Saint Romain instituted in 1947, is both red [Pinot Noir] and white [chardonnay] wines. Lables often include the name of the Climat from which the wine derives.

TERROIR: A geologist's paradise! Here we are on the lias [the earliest period of the Jurassic]. The vines occupy a sloping site where they benefit from excellent soils. This blend of limestones and marls includes patches of clay which especially suit the Chardonnay grape. The vines face South/South-East and North/North-East at altitudes varying from 280 to nearly 400 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: Saint-Romain is pale gold flecked with green. Its nose ranges through lime and white flowers with mineral grace notes. In the mouth, it has good minerality, which time will make smoother and mellower.

Savigny-lès-Beaune

0 22 29

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 46.36 ha [including 10.68 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Between the hill of Corton and Beaune, the landscape opens up like a map unfolding. The hills of the Côte de Beaune recede a littte on either side of the little river Rhoin. These vineyards are of ancient lineage. For much of their hostory, they belonged to the domaine of the Duckes of Bourgogne, to neighboring religious houses, or to the Knights of Malta. An imposing 14TH century castle testifies to the appellation's aristocartic qualifications. THe AOC status dates from 1937.

TERROIR: The Gradient is gentle at first but stiffer as one goes higher. Altitude varies from 250 to 400 meters. The lower slopes consist of alluvia from the Rhoin. Higher, the geology is of the Hill of Corton. At the Pernand-Vergelesses end, exposure is southerly and the soils are gravelly with a scattering of oolitic ironstone. Lower down, the red-brown limestone becomes more clayey and pebbly. Opposite, the slope faces East and the limestone soils include some sand.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: This wine is sometimes gold with emerald highlights, sometimes pale straw color. Its nose is flowery and light-hearted. Its bouquet frequently evokes butter and brioche with notes of lemon, grapefruit, and occassionally a touch of minerality. A lively attack helps to make this a clean, straighfoward wine – quite fleshy, persistent, and occasionally with a touch of spice.

Santenay

0 12 35

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 46.96 ha [including 12.63 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Santenay, laying at the southern extremity of the Côte de Beaune, is home to both the nymph of water and the god of wine: it is both a spa and a winegrowing center. The wines of Santenay and neighbouring Remigny, present discernible differences according to which part of the appellation they hail from. The houses of Santenay and its associated name form a scattering of small groups and sumptuous panoramic views are to be had from the hilltops. Human occupation goes back to pre-history. The Santenay AOC status was instituted in 1937. The Sorine windmill also reepresents an important part of the history of this commune.

TERROIR: Greyish limestone occupy the high ground up to a height of 500 meters. Lower down the slope, starting at the 300-meter line, are oolitic limestones, white ollite, marls, Kidney-Shaped limestones, and lower oolite on a layer of marl. The location of the vineyard is idea with exposures between East and South.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: The Chardonnay is clear and brilliant, mineral and floral, fresh and vigorous. its aromatic expression features notes of bracken and hazelnut.

Spotlight: Grand Cru Vineyards of the Côte de Beaune
The Montrachet Family of Vineyards [5]

SITUATION: The Montrachet family consists of five Grands Crus grown in the two villages of Puligny-Montrachet and Chassagne-Montrachet. These two share the Montrachet and Bâtard-Montrachet appellations: Chevalier-Montrachet and Bienvenues-Bâtard-Montrachet. These Grands Crus are the most southerly of the Côte de Beaune, and lie between Meursault in the North and Santenay in the South.

Their origins go back to the Middle Ages – the work of the Cistercian abbey of Maizières, and the Lords of Chagny. The wines of Montrachet [pronounced "Mon-ray-chay] came fully into their own in the 17th century. There is no argument: this is the finest expression of the Chardonnay grape anywhere on earth! The appellations Grands Crus date from July 31st, 1937.

TERROIR: The underlying rocks date from the Jurassic, 175 million years BC. Exposures lie to the East and the South. Altitude: 265-290 meters [Chevalier]; 250-270 meters [Montrachet]; 240-250 meters [Bâtard, Bienvenues, Criots]. In the Climat of Montrachet, the soils are thinnish and lie on hard limestone traversed by a band of reddish marl. In Chevalier, the soils are thin and stony rendzinas derived from marls and marly-limestones. In the Bâtard Climat soils are brown limestone which are deeper and, at the foot of the slope, more clayey.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS: Subtle differences in the wines signal variations in Climat but they also share many common traits. Their color is gold flecked with emerald, darkening towards yellow with age. Their bouquet evokes butter and warm croissants, bracken, dried fruit, spices and honey. Body and bouquet are not separately distiguishable, so closely blended are structure and harmony into a single perfect whole. Unctuous and firm, dry and caressing, enveloped and profound, these wines combine every virtue in a firmly-established personality.

Corton-Charlemagne

VINEYARD SIZE: 71.88 ha

SITUATION: Situated almost on the border between the Côte de Nuits and the Côte de Beaune, and at altitudes between 280 and 330 meters, much of the Corton-Charlemagne appellation faces south-west [which is uncommon in these parts]. The Hill of Corton, high and rounded, has vineyards on three sides corresponding to the three villages of Aloxe-Corton [Climat: Le Charlemagne], Pernand-Vergelesses [Climat: En Charlemagne] and Ladoix-Serrigny [Climats: part of all of Pougets, Corton, Languettes]. These vineyards were a gift of the Emperor Charlemagne to the religious community of Saint-Andoche de Saulieu in the year 775. It remained in their possession for a thousand years, and today still celebrates, at least in name, their illustrious benefactor. The appellation is made up of two Climats, Charlemagne and En Charlemagne, plus some neighboring plots. Unlike the Corton appellation, the name of the Climat is not mentioned on the label. Its Grand Cru appellation dates from July 31st, 1937.

TERROIR: The Corton Charlemagne appellation occupies the highest portion of the Hill of Corton where the gradients are steep [20-23%]. The hill itself offers an exemplary geological section through the younger [145 million years] Jurassic strata which lie Limestone alternates with marls beneath a thin cover of rendzinas. At mid-slope the mainly red wines of the Corton appellation grow on soils appreciably different in character.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: When young, Corton-Charlemagne is pale gold in color with green highlights. As it ages, the color shifts towards yellow or amber. The bouquet, delicate in the extreme, features buttery notes of baked apple, citrus fruits, pineapple, lime, bracken, juniper, cinnamon, and flint. Honeyed notes are frequently present. The older vintages [25-30 years] reveal leather and truffle. Both the glass and the palate are filled with its powerful exhalations. Corton-Charlemagne is an astonishing demonstration of what the Chardonnay grape is capable of in terms of richness, power, concentration, distinction and balance. Rarely do we see such perfect sythesis between grape and terroir.

Côte de Nuits
Morey-Saint-Denis

0 22 29

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 5.68 ha [including 1.66 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Rich in Oremiers Crus, Morey-Saint-Denis boasts also 5 Grands Crus [Clos de Tart, Bonnes Mares, Clos de la Roche, Clos Saint-Denis, Clos des Lambrays]. The appellation forms a bridge, between the vines of Gevrey-Chambertin and those of Chambolle-Musigny. The history of the wine-growing village has in the past been heavily influenced by the pwerful religious house of Vergy, and abbeys of Cîteaux and Tart, and by some of the great Burgundian families. Of its wine, Dr. Lavalle wrote in 1855, "it can be said that it lacks nothing". The AOC status was instituted in 1936.

TERROIR: The vines grow on limestone and clay-limestone soils dating from the Middle Jurassic: white Bathonien Oolite up-slope and fossil ferous Bajocien limestone at the foot. The vineyards are east-facing and are at altitudes of 220-270 meters. Immediately below the village the slopes are differently oriented and the soil is more marly.

Marsannay

0 22 29

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 41.81 ha

SITUATION: Regarded as the "Golden Gate to the Côte de Nuits", the appellation Marsannay covers the communes of Chenôve, Marsannay-la-Côte and Couchey. There is evidence of vineyards here, as is the case of the rest of the Côte, as early as the 7TH century and the prestige of this vine-growing region is long-established. The Abbey of bèze, the Bishop of Autun, the Dukes of Bourgogne, and many others have owned vines here and the wines found their way to the tables of Louis XIV and Louis XVI. As late as the 19TH century, some Climats enjoyed a classification equivalent to today's Grands Crus.

TERROIR: The vines extend from North to South along the best parts of the hill slope and the ground at its foot at heights of 255 to 390 meters above sea level. Exposures range from due East to South. The soils, derived from mid-Jurassic strata, are very diverse in their composition.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: These wines run through the entire gamut of citrus aromas and white flowers [hawthorn, acacia]. The mouth is frequently full and rounded, introducing a fine and persistent minerality. These wines are delicious while young but, given time, will more fully reflect the typicity of their terroir.

Nuits-Saint-Georges

0 22 29

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 9.87 ha [including 6.60 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Nuits-Saint-Georges is a likeable and lively town with a centuries-old history of winemaking. It gives its name to the Côte de Nuits, and its patron saint, Saint Georges, gives his name to their most famous wine. Its AOC, which dates from September 1936, includes the commune of Premeaux-Prissey in the appellation. Most of the wines grown here are Pinot noir, but there are some plots planted with Chardonnay. The Confrérie des Chevaliers du Tastevin, Borgogne's most famous wine-brotherhood, was founded here in 1934.

TERROIR: The soils in the northern sector derive from pebbly alluvium washed down from up-slope, or, in the low-lying parts, silty deposits from the river Meuzin. In the southern sector, while at the top of the slope, the rock is almost at the surface. esposures are mostly to the East or South-East.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: The [rare] whites have a strong gold color. They are firm and usually heady with a bouquetof brioche and sometimes honey, underpinned by white flowers.

Spotlight: Grand Cru Vineyards of the Côte de Nuits

Musigny

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [WHITE]: 0.66 ha

SITUATION: The village of Cambollle-Musigny lies in the very heart of the Côte de Nuits. The Musigny vineyards lie above the Close de Vougeot between the Les Amoureuses Premier Cru Climat and the Échezeaux Grand Cru. The altitude vary from 260 to nearly 300 meters. The southern portion rises towards the plot known as Combe d'Orveau which marks the boundary between Musigny and Flagey-Échezeaux.

The Musigny family, which gave its name to the appellation, is now extinct but held important posts at the court of the Dukes of Bourgone in the 14th century. The boundaries of the Musigny appelation were formally laid down in April 16th 1929, before the advent of the AOC system. It has always been a Grand Cru.

TERROIR: The gradient on this rocky limestone terrace is quite steep [8-14%]. The soils, though not deep, are enriched by red clay in the upper section and are generally more clayey and less limey than the neighboring Grands Crus. The rocks are of Jurassic origin [approx. 150 million years BC].

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [WHITE]: An Unusual feature of the Musigny Appelation is the 0.66 Ha hectares of Chardonnay planted here by the De Vogüé family. White Musigny is in a class of its own with its flamboyant character and its bouquet of violet and almond.

"If by good fortune, you should ever find yourself in the presence of a white Musigny, match it with only the most delicate of dishes – lobster or crawfish with a butter, cream, and truffle sauce."

Lebanon

Spotlight: Chateau Musar

A Guide To The Style

In their youth: Yellow-gold, subtly oaky, and creamy-textured; rich, yet dry and intensely citrusy, with honeyed nuances. Wholly unique, the style has been described as resembling "dry Sauternes" or mature white Graves. Chateau Musar whites develop tawny hues and mellow spicy characters as they age. The cellars at Ghazir hold bottles of this wine dating as far back as 1954.

Grapes and Vines

Seven years in the making, Chateau Musar White is a blend of ancient grape varieties Obaideh and Merwah, indigenous to the mountains of Lebanon and said to be related to Chasselas Chardonnay and Semillon. The Obaideh vineyards are in the foothills of the Anti-Lebanon mountains on stony, chalky soils, while the Merwah vines are on the seaward side of Mount Lebanon, on calcareous gravels. Yields are very low for these untrained bushvines: 10 – 20hl per Hectare. At high altitude [around 1400m] they are still on their own roots, among very few vineyards in the world of this caliber.

Winemaking

Chateau Musar White is fermented in French oak barriques [from the forest of Nevers] for 9 months, bottled and blended at the end of its first year and released seven years after the harvest.

They are fermented in cask and matured in six old Rioja barrels and two even older "botas' for five years. In a nod back to the traditional style a small amount of Manzinalla is added. There is amazing freshness and acidity but also finesse and complexity. Aromas of spice, dried apricots, dried flowers, lanolin and mushrooms. Similar flavors on the palate which is intense and very dry. Bottled in 2021 and only 2,400 bottles produced.

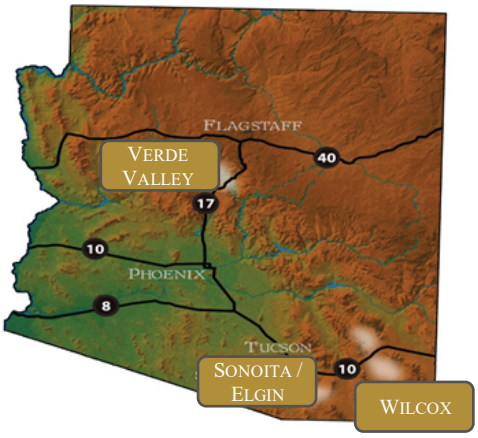
United States

Spotlight: Arizona – Home State Vineyards

3 THREE



Wine Growing AVA's

Arizona

Verde Valley

Arizona is home to three prominent grape growing regions in various altitudes and locations around the state. Northern Arizona encompasses the Verde Valley, an area of the state rich in geological history. Located north of Phoenix about 2 hours by car, and at roughly 3,000-5,500 feet in elevation are the towns of Sedona, Jerome, Camp Verde, Cottonwood, Clarkdale and the communities of Cornville, Page Springs, and Rimrock. Vineyards and wineries sprinkle these rural and urban communities on mountainsides, and near the banks of Oak Creek and the Verde River. The Verde Valley has a wide variety of soils from limestone in Rimrock, sandstone in Sedona, to basalt on House Mountain along with highly fertile alluvial deposits near the Verde River and Oak Creek. Average rainfall is 16-18 inches per year – mostly during monsoon season.

Sonoita / Elgin

Southern Arizona is home to the Sonoita Valley, and the towns of Sonoita, Patagonia and Elgin. Located an hour south of Tucson, and just north of the Mexican border, Sonoita sits at between 4,500 -5,200 feet elevation and was the first designated AVA in the state of Arizona. Sonoita's native grasslands blanket the rolling hills, which are dotted with Arizona Oak, Arizona Ash, and Mesquite. The valley is surrounded by the Santa Rita Mountains, Mustang Mountains, Wheatstone Mountains, and Huachuca Mountains, making the mineral deposits in the Valley's soil a unique mixture of reddish-brownish gravely loam. Highs in the summer are in the 80s – 90s and average rainfall is between 15-20 inches – mostly coming during monsoon season.

Wilcox

South-Eastern Arizona which includes Willcox, Kansas Settlement, Turkey Creek, Pearce, and the overall Cochise and Graham counties, grow the majority of the state's fruit, in larger, more acreage-per-vineyard farms. Average rainfall is 13-18 inches, again mostly coming in heavy monsoon storms during July and August. Vineyards are planted in the Sulphur Springs Valley and along the bases of the mountains in the area between 4,000 and 5,500 feet. To the east are the Chircahua Mountains, Dos Cabezas Mountains and to the west the Dragoon Mountains, and Cochise Stronghold. The soils in the area vary significantly site to site. The Wilcox Playa is home to a large dry lake that is part of the Sonoran Desert eco-region and is the remnant of a Pieistocene era pluvial Lake Cochise. Thousands of sandhill cranes roost in the area during the winter. Down in the Kansas Settlement the soils are relatively deep loams and clay-loams interspersed with cobbles. Vineyards in the area can experience up to 50-degree fluctuations in diurnal temperatures during the growing season.

Spotlight: James Callahan

Winemaker James Callahan began his journey into the world of wine in 2007. Freshly minted with a History degree from Arizona State University, Callahan was simultaneously intrigued by the deep human history of wine and the young wine industry right under his nose in Arizona. He began making wine with PurVine Winery in Tempe, Arizona, where he spent three years mastering Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon under the tutelage of winemaker John Allen Burtner. Subsequent harvests were spent with Waters Winery in Walla Walla, Washington, Paddy Borthwick Vineyards in New Zealand, and Kosta Browne in Sebastopol, California. Callahan came to Kosta Browne as a harvest intern in 2010 and rose to the position of Cellar Master during his tenure. In 2012, Callahan returned to his Arizona roots, relocating to Willcox, AZ as Winemaker with Aridus Wine Company, and later Pillsbury Wine Company. In 2013, in a culmination of his experiences thus far, Callahan founded his own label – Rune Wines. Rune wines has now completed its 9th vintage and has been recognized for its pioneering utilization of native yeasts and unique expressions of Arizona terroir. Today, in addition to continuously expanding Rune Wines, Callahan is also a consulting winemaker for Deep Sky Vineyard and Autumn Sage Vineyards.

The artist admires the waves of amber and thinks of his easel, and the precise mix of paints he may create. But alas, the greatest creation of all already lays before him. Roussanne leads the fruit charge while Viognier provides minerality and Picpoul Blanc finishes this wine with vibrant acidity. Just honeydew melon laced with lemon intrigues the senses.

Natural Wine

Spotlight : Domaine de L'Octavin : France

Born in the Jura, Alice Bouvot came back home at the age of 30, after studying in Bordeaux and Dijon, and working abroad, from Chile to the Napa Valley… That's when she met her then-partner, with whom she founded back in 2005 the "Domaine de l'Octavin", in Arbosi. The couple rapidly decideed to farm oganically and obtained full Dementer Biodynamic certification in 2010. Wild grassses, weeds, insects, and animals all have a place in teir vines creating a true ecosystem that gives a deeper meaning to each glass of her wine.

Since 2009 all l'Octavin wines are "pur jus", with no additives whatsoever. The grapes are destemmed by hand and fermented without the use of SO2, cultured yeasts, or other additives. Most of the wines are fermented and aged in fiber glass or steel tanks, but only at the ambient temperature of the cave.

After facing tough years of spring frost and having to deal with the resulitng poor crops, Alice developed a lone of "négoce" wines, with grapes comping from her friends' vineyards in the Beauolais, the Southo of France, Alsace or the neighbouring Bugey. The wines , with their now famously funny garden dwarfs, prove once again Alice's talent and her unmistakable touch, while pusing further the limits of her native jura…

What is an Orange Wine?

Orange wines are essentially white wines, made using the grape skins as well as the juice.

By macerating the wine juice with the skins during and even after fermentation [which is not done when making white wine] the tannins, flavor, and color structure of the wine changes.

Orange wines can often have more herbal, aromatic notes alongside bitter touches depending on the grape used and the level of maceration with the skins, and wine maturation vessel.

Spotlight : Franco Terpin : Italy

Franco Terpin is a highly regarded natural winemaker from the Friuli region of northeastern Italy, directly bordering Slovenia, and is know for his serious and complex orange wines. Popular wines of Franco Terpin include his Jakot [a term used to descibe the grape Tokaj, which is not longer permitted to be called such under EU Law, due to Hungary claiming the regional style for sweet wines as their one…], Savignon Blanc, and Chardonnay.

So… Why is Tokaj called Jakot?

Well, the grape name Takaj Friulano is controversial…as Hungary delcared it does not want customers to be confusing their famous Takaji wine [wich is made of Furmint, Hárslevelu and Muscat Blanc a Petit Grains] with this Tokaj Friulano from Friuli and Solovenia.

So…it was suddenly an infrigement to use the original grape name. Wine artisans in the Collio region defined this, in their own way and called their Tokaj grape Jakot---which is the same word backwards!

Spotlight : Ploder-Rosenberg : Austria

Ploder-Rosenberg is a family estate, located in Vulkanland Steiermark. It spans over 11 hectares 927 acres0 of vineyards. With Manuel Ploder, the winery is now in its third generation, but the real pivot happened in 2005 when the family converted to biodynamic farming and started to focus on PiWi [fungus resistant] varieties. Today, 70 to 75 percent of their vineyards are planted with PiWis, with Sauvignier Gris being the primary grape.

With Manuel's takeover in 2011, the winery took the next step in its development. He changed the style and started pursuing low intervention wimemaking. He is joined by his partner, Selina Weratschnig, but is also still aided by his parents, Maria and Aldred. Manuel and Selina are free-spirited individuals, often seen walking barefoot, and the new wines at Ploder-Rosenberg reflect this. Their life and wine philosphy are rooted in the notion that everything is interconnected in nature and that humans are a link that has a strong influence on it.

As such, Manuel's winemaking is never rushed. An essential factor is time, or freedom, that he gives the wines to develop. He is a calm, soft-spoken and complex individual, and this energy is translated in the wines. The maceration times, natural sedimentation, spontaneous fermentation [without temperature intervention], as well as the biological acid degradation are all given time to harmonize.

The Winery offers three different lines of their wines. They are: the Fundamental line, the Linea line, and the Archaic line. The Fundamental line features two wines, Vivas and Cara. Vivas is a blend of all the aromatic carieties, while Cara is a blend of all Burgundian-like varieties. These are aged 18 months before bottling. THe fundamental aspect of these wines is the emphasis on the wide range of grape varieties grown at the estate.

The heart of the winery is the Linea line, which focuses on individual varieties. These wines ferment and mature for between 18 moinths and 3 years, moistly in 600-liter oak barrels with the long lees contact. With depth, minerality and expressive complexity, they show character of the variety and the soil.

The Archaic line consists of two levels: the three colors of wine [white, red and rosé], and four elements [air, water, fire and earth] that are fermented and aged in qvevrisand amphoras. These wines are matured for at least 3 years before relese and are the pinnacle of Ploder-Rosenberg's portfolio

To magnify this rosé, a unique bottle was needed. The bottle Clos du Temple, is an exclusive creation by Gérard Bertrand's teams. A geometrical representation of the temple, whose elegant proportions are inspired by the golden section, the Phi: The square base, symbol of the earth, taken up the cubic foundations, the cylinder elevation is intended as an evocation of the connection between earthy and celestial forces. The done, a perfect circle on the shoulders of the bottle, is adorned with a fine gold decoration to underline the gentle curves of the hills surrounding the Clos du Temple. The Royal Blue is a tribute to King Louis XIV, a great lover of Cabrières wines.

Calon-Segur: The History of The Heart

More Than a Symbol

At the center of all our concerns, and in the center of the bottle label, the heart has been the symbol of Calon since the 18th century. Thanks to the Marquis de Ségur, and this sentence, which has travelled through time: "I make wine at Lafite and Latour, but my heart is at Calon". The Marquis de Ségur, the so-called Price of Vines, was one of the most infuluential men in Bordeaux and reigned over some of the top Médoc wine growths. His wines delighted Versailles and subsequently charmed all the courts of Europe.

In the 19th Century, the heart was engraved on the façade of the cellars. The words next to it, Premier Cru de Saint-Estèphe, underline the fact that the estate is one of the oldest in the commune. Saint-Estèphe, in fact, long bore the name Saint-Estèphe de Calon, as if the Château's and the village's history were one and the same.

This easily recognizble heart with it's width and gentele curves first appeared at the beginning of the 20th century when the first labels were created.

Napa Valley

The Napa Valley produces just 4% of California's and .4% of the world's wine grape harvest. It has a dry Mediterranean climate shared with only 2% of the world's surface, which is ideal for producing consistent wines from vintage to vintage. Napa Valley has 16 nested AVAs, each possessing distinct attributes. The sheer number of AVAs within Napa Valley speaks to the region's diversity, allowing winemakers to produce a wide range of wines in an array of styles.

Spotlight : Accendo : Araujo Recarnated…

Many of the iconic Cabernet Sauvignon dating from the 1950s, '60s and '70s were sourced from multiple, exceptional vineyard sites throughout Napa Valley. Brilliant in their youth, the best of these wines are still vibrant and pure fifty plus years later.

Spotlight: Featured Winery: Bond

Napa Valley "Grand Cru" Since 1997

Bond

BOND: A portfolio of wines that are diverse in their geographic representation and 'Grand Cru' in quality, all under the umbrella of one philosophy one team, one mark.

Sourced from select hillside estates, the Cabernet Sauvignon wines of BOND vividly demonstrate the range of Napa Valley's finest terroirs. From the more than eighty vineyards we have worked with over the past quarter century, we have slowly and vigilantly selected five sites. BOND became our covenant and shared commitment to produce only the best expression of the land.

By way of this valuable experience, we had the opportunity to identify select properties that we felt had the potential to define the 'Grand Crus' of Napa Valley. These small hillside Cabernet vineyards, ranging in size from 7 to 11 acres, became the basis for the wines of BOND.

Melbury

Melbury originates from a spectacular property on the slopes north of Lake Hennessey, in the hills east of Rutherford.

The name Melbury is in homage to an historic area in London, where the estate owners reside much of the year. Since its debut with the 1999 vintage, the consistent hallmarks of Melbury have been plush red fruits (current, Bing cherries), redolent with spice and the scent of violets. Elegance and a supple texture define the structure of this wine. The particular exposition of this rocky 7-acre hillside vineyard is southerly overlooking Lake Hennessey, allowing the vines to capture the morning sun yet moderating afternoon temperatures.

Pluribus

Pluribus expresses the character of an estate located at an elevation over 1,100 feet on the dramatic slopes of Spring Mountain.

The name refers to the Latin word for many and was chosen to signify the various facets involved in creating a fine wine: from the sun, soil, and climate of a vineyard to the team of people who guide a wine through its evolution. A breathtaking mountainous 7-acre site with steep exposures to the north, east and southeast, the soil is comprised of volcanic bedrock. Pluribus, which debuted in the 2003 vintage, is defined as a bold, rich, and concentrated wine; elements of dark plum, roasted coffee, and scents of cedar are inherent throughout the vintages.

Quella

Quella the name for the wine from a 9-acre site located in the eastern hills overlooking the heart of the Napa Valley.

Making its debut with the 2006 vintage, the name is derived from the German word for a pristine source or an artesian aquifer. This property sloped facing southwest. The site is an ancient riverbed composed of cobbles and rocks interwoven with pockets of tufa (volcanic ash) that were uplifted during the last volcanic activity in the area. Quella displays an almost ethereal quality of blue fruits, graphite, and a vibrant, subtle finish.

St. Eden

St. Eden is based upon an 11-acre rocky knoll that is part of a beautiful estate located just north of the Oakville Crossroad. Eden is an historical reference to this region's designation on nineteenth century maps.

The red rocky soil of this north facing site originates from high in the Vaca Mountains. St. Eden, which appeared first in the 2001 vintage, reliably shows great focus, an opulent "Sweet" center, and notes of crème de cassis, dark chocolate, and roaster herbs. Mineral-tinged and broad on the palate, the wine consistently displays fine-grained tannins and a lush concentration.

Vecina

Vecina is coined for the Spanish word for neighbor. This is our endeavor with the property situated directly southeast of the BOND winery.

The beautifully terraced volcanic soil slopes of this property reside in Oakville's western foothills. the 11-acre site faces due east and is the recipient of cool morning sun. Vecina's other hallmarks are blackberry fruit, with wild forest floor and mineral associated overtones.

At Buccella, we're especially interested in origins. Our own story began over a beautiful bottle of 1990 Gaja. It was our first date. When we met, we were two individuals with distinct dreams, but we soon found our shared passion for wine would unite our paths to create Buccella.

Buccella Cabernet Sauvignon is crafted from thoughtfully cultivated small vineyards in Napa Valley, primarily in Oakville, Yountville and Coombsville. We believe it is this blend of concentration ripe fruit that results in our wine's unique character, complexity

Spotlight: Caymus - Ultimate Napa Valley Success

In 1971 Charles F. (Charlie) Wagner and his wife Lorna Bella Glos Wagner asked their son Charles J. (Chuck) Wagner, who had just graduated from high school, if he would be interested in joining them in starting up a winery. If Chuck declined the offer, Charlie and Lorna were planning to sell out of their ranch in Napa Valley and move to Australia. Chuck accepted his parents' offer to launch the winery, Caymus Vineyards.

The Wagners produced their first vintage in 1972, consisting of 240 cases of Cabernet Sauvignon. Since then, Caymus has focused their efforts on the production of quality Cabernet Sauvignon. Today's production is 65,000 cases.

Caymus Vineyards remains 100% family-owned by the Wagners. Charlie, Lorna Belle, and Chuck worked together as a remarkable team for over 30 years building Caymus Cabernet. Today, Chick, his two sons, Charlie and Joe, and one daughter, Jenny, have joined the family team. Farming grapes remain the priority with the family farming about 350 acres of choice Napa Valley land.

The Wagners took the name Caymus from the Mexican land grant known as Rancho Caymus, given to George Yount in 1836, which encompassed what eventually became the town of Rutherford and much of the surrounding area.

The Wines

Caymus Vineyards produces two Cabernet Sauvignons – a "Napa Valley" and the venerable "Special Selection". Both Cabernet bottlings have aromas and flavors which can only be achieved through "hang time" – a technique which chances the loss of crop if early winter sets in. Leaving the fruit to "hang" on the vine unusually long develops suppleness, increases color, and matures the tannins of the grapes. the wine s are abundant in textural tannins yet soft as velvet. Crop thinning, allowing measured sunlight to reach the vine's fruit zone, and waiting for increased ripeness are all part of our viticultural practices. Caymus Cabernets offer a wide array of aromas and flavors including cocoa, cassis, and vanilla.

Spotlight: Winemaker: Cathy Corison

Cathy Corison produces a limited quantity of Napa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon, hand-crafted without compromise from some of the finest vineyards in the Napa Valley. They are all located along the western benchland centered around Rutherford where deep, stony alluvial soils promote the ideal growing conditions for the Cabernet vine. These vines regularly produce some of the most concentrated and superbly ripened fruit anywhere.

Many years of winemaking for others, including Chappellet Vineyard, Staglin Family Vineyard, York Creek Vineyards and Long Meadow Ranch, honed her skills and left her eager to express her own winemaking voice. In 1987 she made the first vintage of Corison Cabernet.

Spotlight: Larkmead - Napa Valley's "OG" [Part One]

The historic Larkmead estate is one of the oldest family-owned establishments in Napa Valley. Originally founded in 1895, Larkmead is now under the stewardship of proprietors Cam and Kate Solari Baker.

Larkmead's legendary vineyard features a remarkable diversity of soils that are more typical of a hillside than the valley floor. Centuries of alluvial flow have resulted in the accumulation of ancient riverbed gravel, clay, and loam. Winemaker Dan Petroski captures the nuance and complexity of this site by vinifying small lots according to clonal selection and soil type.

Cabernet Sauvignon

The varietal Cabernet Sauvignon is the core of the Larkmead portfolio and is also the greatest opportunity to highlight the diversity of the estate. Sourced from deeper, richer soil profiles (Pleasanton Loam series) from both A and C block, this wine has the body weight of a "baby Solari." Created through blending the fruit from young and old vines, this wine is made in the image of Solari, but a human can't replicate what Mother Nature creates – and that is the difference between the Estate Cabernet Sauvignon and Solari.

The pinnacle of power, this wine is consistently the most complete and persistent on the palate, broad in both force and length. this intensity is the result of great vine balance and soil profile (both Cortina and Pleasanton) that isn't found anywhere else on the estate.

Spotlight: Hundred Acre Cabernet Sauvignon

"Visiting with Hundred Acre's contrarian proprietor, the bigger-than-life, outspoken and suffer-no-fools Jayson Woodbridge, is always a highlight. First of all, the most importantly, is his commitment to producing great wines. At the same time, he is turning out attractive, consumer-friendly Pinot Noirs. Then there is his inexpensive Layer Cake wines, showing that his portfolio covers the vales as well. But what follows is a look at his top-of-the-line wines from the 15-acre Kayli Morgan Vineyard east of St. Helena, his 15-acre Howell Mountain Ark vineyard, and a spectacular site adjacent to the Eisele Vineyard south of Calistoga called Few and Far Between.

His first vintage was the 2000 Kayli Morgan. At that time he was using consultant Philippe Melka, but he has been on his own for a number of years and the wine quality continues to be among the most singular and profound in all of Napa Valley. His outspoken personality doesn't often sit well in conservative and quiet Napa, but he only needs to let his wines do the talking. Little else needs to be said or done." Robert Parker

Winery Spotlight: Memento Mori "Remember To Live"

The name, Memento Mori, is taken from an ancient Latin philosophy that reminds us of our mortality and the inevitability of death. Inspired by the serious health scares and family tragedy in which the Founders have experienced together throughout there friendship, Memento Mori is a shared mantra which they instead interpret as "Remember to Live."

Spotlight: Larkmead - Napa Valley's "OG" [Part Two]

LMV Salon

Cabernet Franc has historically played a supporting role in the LMV Salon blend. It is a noble variety, but one with an uneven history in Napa Valley, both qualitatively and stylistically. Here at Larkmead, there is success in planting Cabernet Franc in heavier, richer soils. Moving forward, the goal is to allow this wine to differentiate itself by including a higher percentage of Cabernet Franc [up to 70%]; this will elevate the variety's complimentary characteristics [spice, herb] to Cabernet Sauvignon and produce a blend that best communicates the complexity of the estate.

Spotlight: Realm Cellars: The Absurd

The Absurd stems from a simple yet fantastically complex proposition: it's the very best wine that Realm Cellars produces. It began in 2005, a big, gorgeous vintage that gave us an abundance of glorious fruit. With no rules, no restrictions, we created what we called the super blend, the best of the best. In 2005, it so happened that the blend was 38% Petit Verdot. We thought that was kind of absurd. The name stuck, though the meaning has morphed into a wine that is "absurdly good". We only make The Absurd in certain years, when there is enough fruit to make this small blend without impacting the other Realm wines.

Unavailable ○ | Realm "The Absurd" – [Magnum – 1500ml] 2019 6,900
[Unknown Proprietary Blend]

- The Absurd could be one varietal, it could be five.
- It could come from one vineyard Lot; it could come from a dozen.
- Each time we make The Absurd we start with a blank canvas.
- Our sole guideline is our palate.
- Or sole aim is the best Napa Valley wine of the vintage.

Spotlight : Harbison : One Vineyard - Three Expressions

The Harbison Estate vineyard was developed in 2005 and planned in small blocks to facilitate micro-farming and enable its wines to express the estate's varying soil types and selection of Cabernet Sauvignon clones. Rootstock 101-14 was chosen for its superiority in red, volcanic soils and soon after, a special team hand-grafted 4,900 plants that make up the vineyard.

The Trail, Pony Express, and Horseshoe

The vineyard blocks include The trail, located along the Silverado Trail near the front of the property and planted to clone 337. Pony Express is the northern-most block and named for the Pony Express stop once on the estate. It is divided between Clone 7 and 337. Horseshoe, the western facing vineyard block and fondly nicknamed for the numerous horseshoes found during development, is planted to clone 7.

Winemaker Spotlight: Christian Moueix

In the world of wine, few have the experience of Christian Moueix. With over fifty years of producing wines in Bordeaux's Right Bank and thirty-eight in the Napa Valley, his record in both the old and new worlds has given him unrivaled insights.

Son of legendary Jean-Pierre Moueix, Christian was born in Libourne in 1946. After completing agricultural engineering studies in Paris and graduate studies in viticulture and enology at the University of California, Davis, he returned to France.

At the age of twenty-four, he was given the responsibility of managing his family's many chateaux, including Pétrus. A viticulturist at heart, he has worked in the vineyards to pursue each and every means to obtain the highest quality grapes. He experimented with organic farming in the 1970's, exercised frost control by helicopters and installed new drainage systems in the vineyards.

Spotlight: World Class Wine In China? … Ao Yun!

Flying Above The Clouds

Unavailable ○ | Ao Yun Yunnan 2014 630

After four years searching across China, to find the ideal terroir to produce a red wine worthy of comparison with the world's greatest wines, the perfect site was found in the north of the Yunnan province. Situated on the banks of the Mekong River, the region harbors fabulous potential for producing wine, a remote little corner of paradise nestled in the foothills of the Himalayas, not far from the legendary city of Shangri-La. Located in the villages of Adong, Xidang, Sinong and Shuori at the foot of the sacred Meili mountain, Ao Yun vineyards range in altitude from 2,200 to 2,600 meters, enabling the Cabernet Sauvignon grape to express the full refinement of this unique terroir. Local farmers have worked these lands for centuries, adapting their farming techniques to the steep mountainsides. To respect time-honored local tradition, the grape harvest and winemaking are done entirely by hand. The Ao Yun terroir enjoys exceptional climatic conditions, with temperatures similar to those of Bordeaux. Ao Yun means "flying above the clouds", a reference to the clouds that cap the summits of the surrounding mountain chains.

Itata

The Imaginador wine is labeled as Cinsault, however the grapes are sourced from vineyards that are over 200 years old, and all blocks are planted with not only cinsault, but also interspersed with Muscat, Semillon, Carignan and País, a common site in traditional Itata vineyards. The vines are between 70 and 110 years old, planted on hillside vineyards over granite soils. All the grapes are harvested and fermented together to create a unique old-vine field blend. Mid-ruby in the glass with garnet highlights, enchanting aromas of red beery fruits, violets and roses plume from the glass. On the palate, there is a concentrated mineral core and loads of freshness and energy with incredible depth of flavor. The old vines and granite soils combine to create a unique and delicious wine of place. Pedro and his wines are helping to redefine Chilean wine.

Castro Ventosa was founded by the Pérez family in 1752 and the family owns the estate ever since. The Pérez family owns 75 hectares of Mencía vineyards in Bierzo making them the biggest owners of this varietal within the Bierzo D.O. The Bierzo appellation is made of 5,000 hectares with 2,500 ha planted with white varietals and 2,500 ha planted with Mencía and there are 5,000 landowners within the appellation.

Raúl Pérez, who runs the winery, is a figurehead for Bierzo wines in Spain. Mencía is indigenous from Bierzo and some suspect that it is an ancient clone from Cabernet Franc.

Spotlight: Adam Lee: Clarice Wine Co.

Adam Lee, the founder of Clarice Wine Company began working with wine in 1989 at a retail store in Austin, Texas. At the time, he also dabbled in restaurant wine sales, and briefly had a role as a wine distributor sales rep. A few years later, he began working as the Wine buyer at Neiman Marcus in Dallas, and there he met my wife, Dianna Novy. In 1993, they moved to California and, while working in direct sales at various wineries, they started Siduri Wines in 1994. Siduri Wines quickly became known as one of California's premier Pinot Noir producers and grew from 107 cases in 1994 to 25,000 cases in 2015. During that time, their family grew as well, with the addition of three children: Christian, Amber and Truett. In January of 2015, they sold Siduri Wines to Jackson Family Winery. Since then, Dianna has gone on to launch her own sparkling wine brand, Flaunt. Adam stayed on as winemaker for Siduri. In addition to his role as Siduri Wines, he has now introduced Clarice Wine Company as his own small heartfelt project.

About Clarice H. Phears

Clarice H. Phears was Adam lee's grandmother. She was born in 1896 and since he didn't come around until the mid-1960s, she was already somewhat older by the time he met her. Despite that, she was one of his closest friends growing up. They sat on the swing on her front porch as airplanes flew overhead and imagined that our swing was a plane and that we were traveling to some far-flung location. She played basketball with me in my driveway and, yes, shot free throws "Granny-style." She let him eat all the charms out of the Lucky Charms and avoid the cereal. She even sat on the floor with Adam and watched television. Oh, and through her way of cooking she also taught him a lot about making wine. And that's why it's called Clarice Wine Company.

Spotlight: Pisoni Vineyards: Farming At Its Finest

"…the Pisoni family, masters of the Santa Lucia Highlands appellation…"

Each year, they dedicate their energy and efforts to crafting one distinguished Pisoni Estate Pinot Noir which demonstrates their connection with the vineyard and communicates the nature of its hardy, granitic soils and the windswept hillsides that rise around it. They practice great vigilance over the fruit, aiming for modest yields in order to obtain the Estate Pinot Noir's intense character, rich color, and exuberant aromatics. Production is extremely limited, varying annually between 500-800 cases.

The Vision

It all started with a dream about Pinot Noir. A true visionary in the Santa Lucia Highlands, Gary Pisoni, has worked tirelessly since collecting and making his first wines in the 1970s, planting Pisoni Vineyards in 1982, and the producing of the first Pisoni Estate Pinot Noir with his sons in 1998. As dreamers often do, Gary felt something on his family's land that was seemingly not there and followed his intuition relentlessly to uncover it. Multiple costly drilling attempts failed before bringing water up from beneath the solid granite that makes up the hillsides, a feat so many believed to be impossible.

Today Gay's vision of Pinot Noir is the rugged and rocky mountains above the Salinas Valley has been more than realized. Multiple blocks of Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, and Syrah varietals pepper the landscape at elevations from 900 to 1,300 feet, from which they produce wines that seem destined to come from this remarkable site. As a winemaker, Gary, has always been intent on communicating the personality of the land from which the wine was grown – a task he now shares with his sons, vineyard manager Mark and vintner Jeff.

Owner / Winemaker Spotlight: Ted Lemon of Littorai

Littorai Wines was founded in 1993 by Heidi and Ted Lemon. With the exception of Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir, all Littorai wines are single-vineyard designated from the northern coasts of California, western Sonoma, and western Mendocino Counties. in fact, "Littorai" comes from the Latin word for "coasts"

Winemaker Spotlight: George Levkoff : Flying Under The Radar

George Wine Company has one employee, who happens to be named George. He's the person who works in the vineyards, sorts the fruit, ferments the grapes, bottles the wine, cleans the equipment and floor, writes the letters, signs the checks, among other things.

The journey that took George to Sonoma County, California began on a small island in Southern New York State commonly referred to as The Big Apple. After growing up in NYC, George went on to Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, the University of Chicago Graduate School of Business, and the University of Houston Law Center. Following nine years in academia, and significant financial debt, George moved to Los Angeles and became a United States Government Bond Trader.

During a fourteen year career as a bond trader, George arrived at work five days a week at five in the morning. In 1994, about ten years into his trading career, George had some Williams Selyem - Rochioli Vineyard pinot noir with his seared ahi dinner. That night George has an epiphany, as wine became as equal partner with food in the dining experience and decided that one day, he would move to Sonoma County to make Russian River Valley Pinot Noir.

Four years later, George sold his house in Manhattan Beach, quit a fourteen year career, and moved to Healdsburg, California to make pinot noir.

George interned at Williams Selyem from 1999 to 2002, learning the winemaking process. He also worked at the smaller Brogan Cellars which was more closely modeled after the type of winery he hoped to have for himself. With grapes from David of Sonoma Coast's Hirsch Vineyard, he released 150 cases of his inaugural Pinot Noirs in 2003 [Block 3A from the Pommard clone and Block 4A from the Mt. Eden clone]. The wines immediately caught the attention of top sommeliers at restaurants in Las Vegas and New York and his Pinot Noir has become quite a cult wine.

Producer Spotlight : Williams Selyem : California's First "Mailing & Wait List"

Ed Selyem and Burt Williams pursued their winemaking dream in a garage in Forestville, California. Their first vintage was produced in 1982 and within five years, their demand exceeded supply and a wait list was created. Selyem fars had to wait, at times, up to three years to purchase one of these delectable bottles! They quickly gained cult status and set a new standard for Pinot Noir. Now the Dyson family owns the winery and is still created outstanding Pinot Noir.

Producer Spotlight : Domaine Armand Rousseau

Domaine Armand Rousseau is one of the most famous and best domaines in Burgundy. Based in Gevrey-Chambertin, the estate is formed of just over 15 Hectares, over half of which is Grand Cru.

This is one of Burgundy's greatest domains – in terms of history, vineyard holdings and quality of wine. The original Armand Rousseau was at the forefront of the first wave of domaine bottling in the 1930s. He was succeeded by his son Charles in 1959, shortly after they bought a significant slice of the Clos St. Jacques vineyard. Today, Eric, grandson of Armand, is in charge of the vines and cellar, with the help of his daughter Cyrielle.

The Domaine produces pale, finely structured wines of great elegance and stamina. The simple principle of old [but not ancient] vines and sensible yields dictates the Rousseau style. Sometimes the wines can appear light in their youth, but they nearly always take on weight as they age.

The farming here is traditional, with green harvesting where necessary to control yields [which range between 30 and 40 hl/ha]. The vines are ploughed and the use of sprays minimal. In the winery, 90% of the fruit is de-stemmed – the 10% whole-bunch adding tannin and structure to the wines. Fermentation is in open-topped stainless steel vats, with regular pumping over and punch-downs, but temperatures kept below 31°C. The fruit is then pressed gently, settles and transferred to barrel where the wines gently mature.

While the wines are by far some of the most collectible, commanding high prices on the secondary market, the family makes great wines with the hope that they will be drunk, not traded – a hope that we share.

Producer Spotlight : Domaine Comte Georges de Vougüe

With more than 500 years of history and the lion's share of one of Burgundy's most hallowed grand crus, Domaine Comte Georges de Vougüé is a cornerstone of Burgundian legend and a vinous dream for modern connoisseurs.

Certainly, the greatest estate in Chambolle-Musigny if not in greater Burgundy, de Vogüé for 20 generations has been steward to the village's top terroirs. The estate owns some 80 Percent of grand cru Le Musigny, and a significant portion of grand cru Bonnes-Mares. Its premier cru Chambolle-Musigny is crafted exclusively from younger-vine fruit in Musigny.

The style of de Vogüé is the epitome of Chambolle – delicate aromas, refined yet profound flavors, a finish made of silk. These are wines that come into their own not ten years down the line but 30; a cellar without a selection of de Vogüé is a cellar missing the soul of Burgundy

Producer Spotlight : Domaine de la Romanée-Conti

Considered the pinnacle of Burgundy, Domaine de la Romanée-Conti produces some of the world's most revered wines from its tiny vineyards in Vosne-Romanée. Two of the Domaine's seven grand cru vineyards – La Romanée-Conti and La Tâche – are monopoles and unarguably the greatest vineyards in Burgundy. Montrachet in Chassagne, Richebourg, Romanée-St.-Vivant, Grands Échézeaux and Échézeaux are also grand cru vineyards, yielding sublime wines that are among the most highly sought after, seductive and rarest in the world.

Producer Spotlight : Domaine G. Roumier

When Christophe Roumier took over winemaking at his family's Domaine, the quality of the wines soared into the cult league with his exceptional talent. From the beginning, he has made a considerable impact on the domaine's standing and also on other young winemakers in the region. Over the years, his reputation has never faltered, nor has his belief that his wines should be inexpression of unique terrior rather than of the grape varietal. He defines his winemaking technique as guided more by "spirit of mind" than by method.

Domaine Roumier is a beautiful, secluded estate in the village of Chambolle-Musigny, set against a hill and graced by a small vineyard in the background. Both the estate and the man who runs it speak of gentleness with the earth. Christophe prefers a gentle hand in winemaking and modestly gives the impression that he simply interprets the character of wine that is made by the terrior, the vintage and the grape.

The estate dates back to 1924 and includes approximately 40 acres of vines in 12 different appellations. Vineyard practices are directed at respecting the natural balance of the vineyard, including maintaining a diverse, healthy population of yeasts on the grapes for natural fermentations. The philosophy is lutte raisonnee, as close to organic as possible.

Christophe above all strives to make wines with finesse, delicate structure and typicity of each terroir, rather than to the fruit. While their balance and harmony are impeccably tuned, the wines differ markedly in underlying character, each capturing the music of Its own vineyard.

Producer Spotlight : Hubert Lignier

The Domaine Hubert Lignier has long had a reputation for its fine wines known for their concentration, depth and structure.

The Domaine Hubert Lignier is a father and son duo. Hubert and Laurent Lignier are managing this 9.5 hectares wine estate, located in Morey-Saint-Denis, on the Burgundy Côte de Nuits. The Lignier family has been harvesting grapevines since 1880, the year when patriarch Jacques Lignier bought the very first parcels of Pinot Noir and Aligoté varieties, near the small town. His sons inherited the property: first it was Jules, then Henri, Hubert and finally Romain. Five generations in total have been at the helm of the family estate, which slowly but surely became a reference in the region.

Producer Spotlight : Domaine Marquis d'Angerville

Domaine Marquis d'Angerville forms part of the very fabric of Volnay. The Clos des Ducs, one of the village's prime vineyards, lies directly behind the family home of the current Marquis, Guillaume d'Angerville

The Domaine, once part-owned by the Dukes of Burgundy, consists of 14 hectares of vines. The vast majority of this – 12.5 hectares – is Premier cru, representing over 10% of the total premier cru plantings in Volnay. Guillaume d'Angerville left the world of finance in Paris to take charge of the Domaine upon the death of his father, Jacques, in 2003. The Domaine has been in the family for over two centuries, having been acquired in 1805.

Producer Spotlight : Remoissenet Père et Fils

Remoissenet Père et Fils is a reference point for refined Burgundy wines. This ancient estate, connected by mortar and stone to the medieval walls of Beaune, is for serios collectors linked by vine and bottle to Burgundy's hallowed past and its exciting future.

Wandering through the 150-year-old estate's hand-carved cellars is to travel back in time, each cool bottle telling a story of vintages past, wars won, anniversaries celebrated. Yet among these bottled memories are barrels of stories to come: older vines tended according to biodynamic methods, unique terroirs selected with the utmost care and in micro-quantities.

In 2005, Remoissenet started the next chapter in its generations-long history. With new owners and renewed leadership under Pierre-Antoine Rovani [formerly of the Wine Advocate], the estate is bringing more vineyards under its own roof and importantly, raising the qualitative bar for itself and its vine-growing partners across the board.

The Proof, of course, is in each bottle. Weather "basic" Bourgogne to hallowed grand cru, Remoissenet wines show a suave elegance in perfume and texture, with a finish made of silk.

Germany [Spätburgunder]

In Germany, The Spätburgunder is to red wine what the Riesling is to white wine: the cream of the crop. In fact, Germany is the world's third largest producer of Pinot Noir. The German name for the grape is Spätbergunder – late [spat] ripening pinot [burgunder].

"The Willamette Valley is a wide south-to-north oriented valley on the eastern side of the Coast Range of Oregon. The mountains act as a slight buffer to the extreamly cold Oregon coast, but the valley still experiences some of the wettest conditions of any wine region."

Willamette Valley [10,000 Acres Planted]

The overarching Willamette Valley region contains all vineyards including those outside of the sub-AVA's. Wines labeled Willamette Valley could also be blends of several vineyards put together, which is quite common because vineyard sizes are small due to good available sloped and angled land.

Producer Spotlight : Et Fille [Part One]

Et Fille was founded by father and daughter team, Howard Mozeico and Jessica Mozeico. Howard degan making wine in his garage in 1984 as a hobby while he was a software engineer at four startup technology companies. His passion was fueled and he took enology glasses, won amature winmaking compations, and helped local winemakers.

Jessica grew up helping her dad with his winemaking hobby. She fell in love with wine, thought it was a passion she cultivated from the sidelines as she pursued an undergraduate degree from Hamilton Collage, an MBA from Wharton at the University of Pennslvania, and a career in biotechnology marketing. After leading Biotechnology drug launches and marketing teams, Jessica found a consulting firm to provide strategic planning services.

However, the opportunity to make wine together caused both to throw in their corporate ID badges. They ran the winery together until Howard's death in 2017. Jessica learned everything about winemaking from her dad and is inspired by her late father's lecacy and daughter's future. She says, "I have the hinor and responsibility to carry Et Fille forward in a manner than is consistent with my dad's vision, values, and palate. I will continue building the legacy of Et Fille for my daughter."

Unavailable ○ | Et Fille "Back of the Envelop" 2019 250

It all began on the back of an envelope. When our family moved to Oregon in 1978, a neighbor offered my dad his extra Pinot Noir vines.

Gabriella

The Gabriella Pinot Noir was born as the Et Fille Grand Cru bottling in honor of Jessica's daughter, Gabriella, to be enjoyed on her 21st birthday, a Frnech tradition that the family adopted. Since then, the goal of the Gabriella Pinot Noir is to create a wine of strength that is intended to age with complexity, refinement, and grace. It is comprised of three special lots, whole cluster for tannin complexity, and a higher than usual percentage of new oak for logevity.

Plums, Currants and Five Spice

This wine area spans along a low set of hills that lead south into the state capitol of Salem, Oregon. All of the best vineyards are on southeastern facing slopes that run along the 221 Highway. The name "Lingua Franca" is a universal language that can bring people from diverse backgrounds together sharing a moment of pleasure. Lingua Franca, named after the Francks, was a universal language in the Middle Ages that could be understood by all and was used along the trade routes. It was the language of diplomacy and brought people together from diverse cultures. Lingua Franca also means to "speak frankly," directly, just as our wines aim to speak directly of their terroir, their place.

Mt. Pisgah, Polk County [584 Acres Planted]

Complex, Expressive & Idyllic

Located just over 20 minutes from Oregon's capital city of Salem, the state's 23rd and newest AVA has a reputation for growing the kind of grapes that lead to outstanding wine. This is due in part to the unique Siletz soil series, which has proven to be particularly well-suited to growing exceptional quality Pinot noir. It is also due to a microclimate that is characterized by the warmth of the nearby Willamette River, the mild influence of the Van Duzer winds, and the rain shadow of Laurel Mountain to the west.

This is a place where quality takes precedent over quantity, where you can experience wine that insists on telling you where it's from.

Spotlight : Syrah Vertical : La Sangre de Jonata

The grapes come from a vineyard site in Ballard Canyon, Santa Ynez Valley, and the blend is almost entirely Syrah, with a smidge of Viognier in the classic Northern Rhône Style. After fermentation, the wine is aged in 30% new French oak, with the remaining 70% neutral.

Spotlight: Cayuse Vineyards: The Stones Hold The Secret

Perhaps you've heard the almost mythical story, how the brash, young French Vigneron visited the then little-known town called Walla Walla, and fell in love with a few acres of seemingly useless, stone-covered farmland. While the nay-sayers nayed, Christophe Baron deftly turned that field of stones into the acclaimed Cayuse Vineyards. And the rest, as they say, is history.

Cayuse is a domaine located in the Rocks of the Walla Walla Valley. Over the past 20 years, Christophe has made it his mission to craft food-friendly wines of incredible depth, individuality and character – all from fruit grown entirely using biodynamic farming methods.

Spotlight : Once & Future :

"Life must be lived forwards but can only be understood backwards."

- Kierkegaard

Once and Future Wine Company is a return to the original vision I had for Ravenswood so many years ago. A project that specializes in wines from special vineyards made with a sensitivity to place and in a style that I personally love and believe in. Wines that force me to dust off the old red wood vats and get out a new punch down tool [my original is in the Smithsonian], wines that dye my hands that harvest shade of black/purple and sometimes force me to take an additional Advil some mornings. In short-wine of sweat, exertion, and love.

Winemaker Spotlight : "The Terroirist" : Pedro Parra

Pedro Parra is a man obsessed with terroir. Born in Itata, a small, remote wine region in the Bio Bio area of southern Chile, Pedro has spent his adult life learning about the soils that make great wines the world over. After earning a PhD in terroir from the Paris Center of Agriculture, and with six years' experience in French terroirs, he has gone on to consult for wineries like Jean-Marc Roulot, Marco Marengo, Liger Belair, Altos las Hormigas, Chapter 24, and Zuccardi, to name a few. Today, he brings this focus on unique terroirs to his home on Itata's granite slope, hoping to give them the global profile they deserve. Within the granitic areas, Pedro prefers to focus on the sandy quartz granite soils, as they force roots deeper than clay soils and therefore express there terroir better. Pedro says that Itata reminds him of places like Galicia, Barolo, and Morgon: places with a long-standing tradition of winemaking, but relatively unknown to the world until recently. With this project, he hopes to also help the local farmers who

HAVE PROTECTED THEIR OLD VINES FROM INDUSTRIAL WINE PRODUCERS WHO WOULD HAVE THEM TEAR OUT THEIR CINSAULT AND PAIS IN FAVOR OR THE GLUT OF BORDEAUX VARIETALS THAT HAVE COME TO DOMINATE THE CHILEAN WINE MARKET.

ABOUT ITATA

ITATA IS A SMALL, REMOTE WINE REGION IN THE BIO BIO AREA OF SOUTHERN CHILE. THE AREA IS AN OUTSTANDING MYSTERIOUS PLACE, FULL OF HISTORY, TERROIR, AND PASSION. ITATA AND BIO BIO WERE FOR MANY YEARS AN AREA OF ISOLATED GRANITIC MOUNTAINS, NEAR THE OCEAN, 500 KMS SOUTH OF SANTIAGO. A DIFFICULT PLACE TO VISIT FOR CENTURIES, WITH NO ROADS, STEEP SLOPES, RAIN, AND FOREST. THEREFORE, ISOLATION WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR AN STRONG LOCAL COMMITMENT TO VITICULTURE AND WINE, ABSOLUTELY LOST IN TIME, AND TOTALLY DISCONNECTED WITH THE WINE MODERNITY THAT HAPPENED IN CHILE IN THE LAST 40 YEARS. THIS ISOLATION IS THE KEY FACTOR FOR THIS TERROIR. NO BORDEAUX VARIETIES INVADED, NO HIGH YIELD PRODUCTION WITH IRRIGATION; ALL OF THIS KEPT THE AREA PURE AND UNIQUE. IN A GEOLOGICAL SENSE, THE AREA IS DEFINED BY PALEOZIC ERA, 220–300-MILLION-YEARS-OLD, SCHIST AND GRANITE SOILS. THERE ARE NO VINES PLANTED ON THE SCHIST DUE TO PLAN TO PLANTING OF PINE AND EUCALYPTUS DURING THE PINOCHET ERA, SO THE TERROIR FOR WINE IN ITATA IS DEFINED BY THE GRANITE. WITHIN THE GRANITIC AREAS, PEDRO PREFERS TO FOCUS ON THE SANDY QUARTZ GRANITE SOILS, AS THEY FORCE ROOTS DEEPER THAN CLAY SOILS AND THEREFORE EXPRESS THE TERROIR BETTER. WEATHER IS COASTAL, COOL, AND CLOUDY WITH ENOUGH RAIN TO MAKE DRY FARMING POSSIBLE. THE TWO VARIETIES MOST WIDELY PLANTED IN ITATA ARE CINSAULT [45-TO 70-YEAR-OLD VINES] AND PAÍS [60- TO 120-YEAR-OLD VINES]

Beaujolais

Beaujolais, like many French regions, ranks its vineyard sites. Ordinary vineyards can produce simple "Beaujolais," while vineyards in higher-ranking villages can label theirs wines "Beaujolais-Villages. Those wines tend to offer more than the basic Beaujolais: more complex flavors, more structure. Best of all, the vineyards in the 10 Beaujolais Crus can label their wines with the Cru name only [so, "Morgon," rather than "Beaujolas"]. These wines represent the best of the Beaujolais: serious, delicious, and often age-worthy wines.

Spotlight: The Ten Crus of Beaujolais

Saint-Amour

"An Eye For Romance"

Saint-Amour is the most northerly of the 10 crus of Beaujolais, bordering the Mâcon region of Burgundy. At its best, Saint-Amour is an intensely red-fruited wine, bearing a bit of a resemblance to its much more expensive cousin in the north in Burgundy's Chambolle-Musigny, Les Amoureuses.

Juliénas

"Strong-Rooted"

Juliénas is another Cru known to be a little sturdier than the others and so can be aged. The wine's signature profile is deep red cherries, which transform with a few years of bottle age into nuanced flavors that veer towards cassis.

Chenas:

"Playing Hard-to-Get"

Chénas produces a tender wine that can age surprisingly well. You do not see it around much, as very few fine examples are imported to the U.S.

Unavailable ○ | Pascal & Jean-Philippe Granger "Aux Pierres" 2019 66

Moulin-à-Vent

"King of the Crus"

This is considered the sturdiest, most tannic, longest-lived among the 10 Crus of Beaujolais. When you hear about folks opening up delicious bottles of 50-year-old Beaujolais, it's usually Moulin-à-Vent. But remember, we are still talking about Gamay. The wine is never that tannic, and most examples are still very approachable when they're young, unless the vintage is a particularly structured one.

Fleurie

"Pretty Princess"

Outside of Morgon, Fleurie appears to have the greatest concentration of good producers throughout the 10 Crus of Beaujolais. And with particularly fine terroir, Fleurie is another great source of Cru Beaujolais. "Fleur," of course, means "flower" in French, and indeed the wines of Fleurie are characterized by a distinct floral note – think violets.

Chiroubles

"The Gateway Cru"

Chiroubles' position within the 10 Crus of Beaujolais is unique, as it is at the very highest altitudes of Beaujolais and the grapes take about a weeklong to ripen than elsewhere. Chiroubles tend to have quite a bit of complexity, even as young wines, which makes the appellation a great source for Cru Beaujolais to drink young. This complexity derives from a lovely velvetiness that is absent in the other Crus, as well as a floral note that is reminiscent of Fleurie.

Morgon

"The Bold Scholar"

Of the 10 crus of Beaujolais, this is the closest to Moulin-à-Vent in terms of weight and structure, and it can age nearly as well. It has a form minerality, thanks chiefly to its granitic soils, and a fruit profile that shades towards orange.

but the chief advantage of Morgon is that it is blessed with an extraordinarily range of excellent producers. This includes all four of the "Gang of Four," protégés of natural wine pioneer Jules Chauvet: Jean-Paul Thevenet, Marcel Lapierre, Jean Foillard, and Guy Breton.

Régnié

"New Kid on the Block"

In the vineyards, Régnié is distinguished by its pink granite soils. In the mouth, it seems to have a slightly spicier profile than the other Crus. It's a lovely wine in the right hands, but unfortunately there are not many famous examples.

Côte de Brouilly & Brouilly

"The Older Brother & The Crowd Pleaser"

As the word "Côte implies, the Côte de Brouilly lies on the side of a hill. Its neighbor, Brouilly [without the "Côte"], is at the bottom. Predictably, Côte de Brouilly tends to ripen better, and it produces a more structured, elegant wine. Brouilly, meanwhile, produces a lighter style Beaujolais for early drinking.

Burgundy

[Pinot Noir – Unless Noted Differently]

Bourgogne Rouge [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 1,854.93 ha approx.

SITUATION: Bourgogne rouge comes from the Pinot Noir grape whose name can be traced back as far as 1375, and which gives birth to all the great red wines of Bourgogne. It is delicate, highly valued and needs careful looking after during the growing season. The appellation Bourgogne rouge dates from 1937 and is grown in 299 communes throughout wine-growing Bourgogne. It envokes images of plentitude and makes a fine starting point for further explorations into the world of red Burgundian wines.

TERROIR: In many cases the region red Bourgogne grow and flourish near more prestigious AOC. These close neighbors are separated by only hundreds or sometimes even as little as tens of meters. The vineyards tend to be located along the foot of the wine-growing slopes on limestone soils mixed with some clays and marls. The soils are stony, rocky even, and quick-draining.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: A wine grown in so many different villages obviously has a host of different ways of seducing the senses, yet these wines nevertheless share many common traits.

To the eye, they are richly colored – crimson at first then, with age, shading towards dark ruby. To the nose they offer at first a basket of small red and black fruits [strawberry, cherry, blackcurrant, bilberry] later evolving into cooked prune, peppery notes, and notes of animal, underbrush, moss, and mushroom. They are lively and structured in the mouth with a well-rounded and supple backbone. Tannins and fruit go hand in hand and the chewiness matches the power of the secondary aromas. This wine has volume and flesh – it is, in a word, vinous.

Bourgogne – Hautes Côtes de Beaune [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [REDS & ROSÉ]: 668.78 ha

SITUATION: The vines are located at the foot of the limestone cliff on the sunny slopes of a ribbon of valleys perpendicular to the Côte de Beaune, from Les Maranges to Ladoix-Serrigny heading west.

Wine from the Hautes Côtes de Beaune was drunk at the coronation of Philippe Auguste in 1180.

The vines underwent a period of expansion, linked to economic growth throughout the 19th century, until phylloxera struck.

Its renaissance stemmed from the reestablishment of the winegrowers union of the Hautes Côtes de Beaune in 1945, which was responsible for the creation of the appellation on August 4th, 1961.

TERROIR: The vines of Bourgogne – Hautes Côtes de Beaune grow on the south- and southeast-facing slopes of valleys cut into the limestone plateaus at between 290-485m above sea level, between 100-200m higher than the Côte de Beaune, which results in slightly later maturing and harvesting on average around one week later. The soil is made up of formations laid down 80 million years ago during the Trias [sandstone and clay] and the jurassic [marl and limestone].

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: A wine garnet in color with hints of bright red. The nose offers aromas of blackcurrant and heady notes of rose, cherry, strawberry, and licorice, with touches of blueberry, iris, violet, pepper, and mint. In the mouth, it is fresh and fairly structured, marked by a minerality giving rise to crisp tannins and fruitiness, followed by a saline finish, underscored by aromas of cherry and licorice.

Bourgogne – Hautes Côtes de Nuits [Regional]

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [REDS & ROSÉ]: 617.04 ha

SITUATION: At one time apparently doomed to disappear these vineyards have undergone a patient, courageous , and ultimately successful restoration. Overlooking the slopes of Gevrey-Chambertin and extending as far as the wood of Corton the Bourgogne - Hautes Côtes de Nuits have a wild beauty.

TERROIR: The vineyards are located at heights of between 300 and 400 meters and occupy the sides of valleys which cut into the Jurassic limestone plateau to the west of the Côte. The underlying rock is the same as that of the Côte but the overburden in thin or non-existent. The soils are formed by a mixture of eroded limestone and marly subsoil.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: The reds are the direct descendants of those 18th century burgundies described as "full of fire, uplifting and light, almost all genius" by the Abbé Claude Arnoux who in 1723 published the first book devoted to the wines of Bourgogne. Their color is crimson or dark ruby, sosmetimes leaning towards strawberry. They bypass aromas of chery, liquorice , and sometimes violet. They have a firm, straightforward taste, tannins pleasant once matured, and just the right amount of body.

Aloxe-Corton

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 118.53 ha [including 35.91 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Linking the Côte de Nuits with the Côte de Beaune, the hill of Corton signals a change in the landscape. Towards Beaune the land becomes more rounded, its sharp contours yielding to gentle valleys. Like its neighbor Ladoix-Serrigny and Pernand-Vergelesses, Aloxe-Corton [pronounced "Alosse"] enjoys a oerfect wine-growing location and forms as it were a guard of honor on the approach to the prestigious appellation Grands Crus Corton and Corton-Charlemagne. The appsation d'Origine Contrôlée dates back to 1938.

TERROIR: A cross section of the Corton hill reveals a classic geolocical picture. At altitudes of between 200 and 300 meters, the soil is reddish brown with flint and limestone debris [known as "chaillots"] mixed in, and is rich in potassium and phosphoric acid. The vines face due east. Wines from the Northern end are more tender and fruity while those from the Southern end are firmer and more complex. Pebbly soil favors supple, highly-bred wines, while clay and marl breeds firmness and complexity.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Aloxe-Corton Reds are quite dark in color, their shades varying from deep rub through crimson to garnet. While young, the wine's aroma suggests a spring garden with small red fruits [raspberry, strawberry] and black fruits [blackcurrent, blackberry]. These intensify with age and evolve into peony and jasmine, preserved and brandied fruits, pistachio, prune, leather, trufle, mushroom and cinnamon. The deep soil begets a vigorous, full-bodied Pinot Noir, robust yet refined. Tender and fruity, this wine reaches its peak after 3 to 5 years in the cellar, revealing a firm and well-built body, richly chewy and with pleasing tannins.

Beaune

0 42 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 355.16 ha [including 270.16 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: The Hôtel-Dieu, built in the Flamboyant style, the huge silent cellars of the négociants houses, and the wine-growing domaines of the district all attract countless visitors. The Beaune vineyards are among the most extensive of the Côte. From here comes the Pinot vermilion of the Dukes of Bourgogne – a red wine, aromatic and full of fire, whose reputation goes back to the late Middle Ages. The whites, less common, make the best use of soils suited to the Chardonnay grape. The Beaune AOC was established in 1936.

TERROIR: In the Syncliinal of Volnay the Comblanchien limestone disappears into the depths to be replaced by the overlying Rauracian. The slopes are quite steep and the soil [scree-derived black rendzinas] thinnish. On the lower slopes are Argovian marls and deep soils, white, grey or yellow, tinged with red from the iron in the Oxfodian limestone. At the foot of the slope, Limestones are mixed with clay. Exposure: east to due south. Altitude: 220 to 300 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: This wine has a striking and vivid color – a luminous scarlet, introducing aromas of black fruits [blackcurrant, blackberry] and red [cherry, gooseberry], as well as humus and underbrush. When older, it is redolent of truffle, leather, and spices. In youth, it charms the palate with the tatse of crunchy fresh grape. Firm, upright and full of juice, it evolves with time, revealing a solid and absolutely convincing structure.

Chassagne-Montrachet

3 55 46

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 92.16 ha [including 27.95 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: In the southern part of the Côte de Beaune Chassagne-Montrachet shares with Puligny the uncontested title of the prince of the world's dry white wines: the divine Montrachet [pronounced "Monrachay"]. This fine, broad hillside brings out the very highest expression of the two Burgundian grapes – the Pinot Noir and the Chardonnay, which grow here side-by-side – such is the complexity of the region's soils! Extensive marble quarries, which form a kind of cliff face, were the source of the pink and beige flagstones which went into the building of the Trocadero in Paris and more recently the Louvre Pyramid. The Chassagne-Montrachet AOC dates from 1937. It includes some plots in the neighboring village of Remigny which share the same soil conditions.

TERROIR: At altitudes between 220 and 325 Meters, the succession of rocks from the top down is first rauracien then callovien and finally argovien. The soil of the various Climats [named plots with distinctive qualities] ranges from pebbly limestones, through marls, to sandy soils with a Jurassic basis.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Brilliant, with purplish highlights – this wine is well-colored Pinot Noir. Aromas of Morello cherry and cherry-pit, wild strawberry, gooseberry, and raspberry are commonly present. Notes of animal and spice complete the bouquet. In the mouth, this wine has real substance. Its delicious fleshiness partly conceals tannins which, though somewhat austere in youth, give way with maturity to a concentrated and taste-filled structure, intriguing in its complexity.

Ladoix

0 11 38

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 73.77 ha [including 15.98 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: If you are coming from Dijon, it is at Ladoix that the Côte de Beaune begins. Ladoix shares with Aloxe-Corton and Pernand-Bergelesses the honour of producing the famous wines of the Hill of Corton. The appellation was instituted in 1937. THe vineyards grow red or white wines according to whether the soils best suits the Pinot Noir or the Chardonnay grape.

TERROIR: The soils of the upper slopes are pebbly and reddish [iron-rich olite] with a high limestone content and quite marly. These suit great white wines. Mid-slope, reddish-brown calcareous soils with abundant limestone debris grow full-bodied and flamboyant red wines, Clayey soils at the foot of the slopes take away some of their fire. Exposures: easterly or South-East to South. ALtitude 230 to 325 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: The color of this wine often suggests that of blackcurrants – bright garnet with purplish highlights. The bouquet is full of strawberry, cherry jam or cherries in brandy. Vegetable [elder] or spicy [Clove] notes are also met with, as well as coffee or cocoa. In the mouth this wine is tender, supple, rounded, full, velvety and structured with just the right amount of tannins.

Pernand-Vergelesses

3 8 13

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 76.10 ha [including 41.49 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Pernand-Vergelesses is tucked into the junction of two valleys among the hills of the Côte de Beaune. The nearby Hill of Corton stands guard over it and two other villages, Aloxe-Corton and Ladoix-Serrigny, harboring prestigious Grands Crus: Corton in red and Corton-Charlemagne in white. Pernand with its sloping site and steep streets has a smiling face. It has an important place in French culturalhistory: Jacques Copeau [1879-1949], a driving force behind the French theatrical renaissance of the 1920's and promter of a "decentralized" dramatic tradition, spent a large part of his life here and it was Pernand which saw the genesis of the "Copiaus", a group of great actors whose work and whose spirit still lives on today

TERROIR: Most of the vineyards face East or South with a few facing North-East. Altitudes: 250-300 meters. On the lower slopes are clayey-limestone soils mixed with "Chaillots" [flinty residues from silcaceous limestones]. These soils are easily worked and rich in potassium and phosphoric acid. Mid-slope, the pebbly limestone souls suit the Pinot Noir, and at the top, the brown or yellowish marly soil harbours the Chardonnay.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: To the eye, Pernand-Vergelesses is an intense ruby color with blush highlights, of an intense crimson. In the early stages the nose is of strawberry, raspberry, and violet. When older, it evolves into underbrush and spices. The mouth is unaggressive but muscular with well-melted tannins. Meaty and robust, its fleshy constitution has all the harmony one could wish for.

Pommard

0 28 32

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 341.66 ha [including 115.62 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: For Centuries Pommard has been considered the typical Bourgogne: deep red in color, powerfully aromatic, solid and trustworthy. The very name Pommard has a generous ring to it and fills the mouth as it fills the glass. Pommard with its smiling vineyards lies between Beaune and Volnay where the Côte de Beaune makes a slight turn towards Autun. These lands formerly belonged to the Dukes of Bourgogne, to religious houses including the abbey of Cîteaux, or to old families such as the Marey-Monge family. As early as the Middle Ages, Pommard was thought of as the flower of Bourgogone wines – the wine to which all others were compared. The appellation, one of the first AOC to be so designated [1936], grows only red wines from the Pinot Noir grape.

TERROIR: On the lower ground the soil is ancient alluvium. Mid-slope, the clay-limestone soils are well drained thanks to the inclusion of rock debris. Higher still are Jurassic [Oxfordian] marls, brown calcic soils, and brown limestone soils. In places, the soil is reddened by the presence of iron. Exposure: south or east. Altitude 250 to 330 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Beware of preconceived notions! The fame of Pommard in the 19th century earned it the image of a wine that is both forcful and virile. In reality, time, terroir and methods of vinification have all combined to create a more subtle reality, a wine that is both richer and more sensitive. Its color is the deep, dark red with mauve highlights which caused Victor Hugo to speak of it as "night in combat with day". It's aromas are redolent of blackberry, billberry, or gooseberry, cherry pit and ripe plum. Often, wild and feline notes develop with age. At full maturity, it tends towards leather, chocolate and pepper. It needs to be given time to open up to its fullest extent and to display its mouth-filling texture, its firm but delicate structure, its fruit-filled mouth, and its chewy tannins, which by then will be properly smoothed down. A "rich" wine? Certainly.

Santenay

0 12 34

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 282.35 ha [including 110.84 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Santenay, laying at the southern extremity of the Côte de Beaune, is home to both the nymph of water and the god of wine: it is both a spa and a winegrowing center. The wines of Santenay and neighbouring Remigny present discernible differences according to which part of the appellation they hail from. The houses of Santenay and its associated name form a scattering of small groups and sumptuous panoramic views from the hilltops. Human occupation here goes back to pre-history. The Santenay AOC status was instituted in 1937. The Sorine windmill also reepresents an important part of the history of this commune.

TERROIR: Greyish limestones occupy the high ground up to a height of 500 meters. Lower down the slope, starting at the 300-meter line, are oolitic limestones, white oolite, marls, kidney-shaped limestones, and lower oolite on a layer of marl. The location of the vineyards is ideal with exposures between East and South.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Santenay produces mainly red wine. The color is dark but brilliant black-cherry. The bouquet envokes rose-petals, peony, violet, red fruits and a hit of liquorice. In the mouth, the attack is deep and intense. Firm but discreet tannins make for a body that is supple, fine textured and well-built. It boasts back aromas [often bilberry] and a long finish.

Volnay

0 29 24

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 221.99 ha [including 132.95 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Volnay, perched on the hill of Chaignot high up in the Côte de Beaune, occupies a narrow and steeply sloping site as if to allow more space to the vines. The hill itself is oriented slightly differently from the general run of the country so that the vines face South-East rather than East. These vineyards have been valued and exploited for centuries. Long before the Revelotion the harvests of Volnay went to the Knights of Malta, the Abbeys of Saint-Andoche d'Autun and Maizières, or to the Ducks of Bourgogne and their successors, the Kings of France.

The typicity of this red Pinot Noir wine was fixed as early as the 18th century. It gained its controlled appellation status in 1937. The appellation Volnay is twinned with Volnay-Santenots, grown in neighboring Meursault on ground equally suited to the Pinot Noir Grape.

TERROIR: The ooolite limestone has a superficial similarity to the reddish igneous rock [porphyry] found in the Morvan district. It is pink in color with pale green inclusions and overlain by banks of schisst. At the top of the slope, this limestone predominates. Lower down we find white, chalky-textured argovien limestone. Lower still are reddish Bathonien limestones, pebbly and ferruginous. The soils at the foot of the slope are deeper and more gravelly. Altitudes: 230-280 meters.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Volnay, admired for its delicacy, its sap, and it's bouquet, has always been thought of as the most feminine of Bourgogne wines. Though certain of its terroirs modify this judgement with more vigorous and muscular versions, it truly does stand out among the red wines of the Côte de Beaune like the lipstick imprint of a kiss…. The color varies from bright ruby to a light garnet. It's aromas are of violet, gooseberry, cherry, and – with age – spices, game and cooked prune. It has an immediate appeal which, added to a slight natural precocity, means it can be fully open while still relatively young. The attack is fresh, the finish is warm. Drinking this wine, one seems to bite into a fresh fruit and breath in its heady aroma.

Côte de Beaune Grand Cru
Corton

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 88.68 ha

SITUATION: The Hill of Corton lies in the midst of a cluster of famous wine-growing villages – Ladoix-Serrigny, Aloxe-Corton, Pernand-Vergelesses and Savigny-Lès-Beaune. – with, to the North, the Southern end of the Côte de Nuits where vineyards mingle with stone quarries [Comblanchien limestone]. The vineyards lie at heights of 250-330 meters and form a kind of amphitheater not found elesewhere in the Côte. The Hill of Corton produces white Corton-Carlemagne and [mainly] red Corton, described by Camille Rodier as "le roi des bons-vivants" [or "the king or the bon vivants]. corton Grand Cru received its AOC status on July 31st, 1937. A small quantity of white wine is grown but only the reds have the right to add the name of their Climat to that of the appellation

TERROIR: Esposure is South-East/South-West [not an arrangement frequently found in the Côte]. The hillside offers a text-book cut-away of the local geology. The Ocfordian Jurassic limestone lying between Ladoix and Meursault is younger [145 million years] here than elsewhere along the Côte. At mid-slope the gradient is gentle and the soil reddish and pebbly, derived from brown limestone and rich deposits of marl with high potassium content. The Pinot Noir grape is pampered here. The Chardonnay grape [which gives us the Corton-Charlemagne] occupies the top of the slope.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: The Corton reds are an intense velvety crimson darkening toward magenta. Their generous aromatic expression is of fruit notes [blueberrry, gooseberry, kirsch better] or flowers [violet], evolving toward underbrush, animal, leather, fur, pepper, and liquorice. On the palate this wine is well-built, powerful and muscular and the chewy body comes to the fore. Firm, frank and fat, it requires time [4-12 years] to reach its peak.

The Flagey-Échezeaux commune contains 2 grand cru vineyards, but Flagey-Échezeaux is not as regional AOC

Spotlight: Communes of the Côte de Beaune

Chambolle-Musigny

2 24 33

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 152.99 ha [including 55.40 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: This little village of the Côte de Nuits, formerly an adjuct of the Abbey of Cîteaux, is unwilling to expand, since to do so would mean encroaching on its precious land [though it has given space to a lime-tree with a girth of 5 meters!]. Two superb appellations Grands Crus are grown here: Bonnes-Mares, which links its vineyards to those of Morey-Saint-Denis, and Musigny which overlooks the Clos de Vougeot. The village also boasts among its fine wines a prestigious Premier Cru, Les Amoureuses. Its AOC dates from September 11936, making it one of the first French vineyards to be thus designated.

TERROIR: The slope faces east at altitudes of 250-300 meters with only a shallow covering of soil overlying the parent rock, but fissures in the hand Jurassic limestone allow the roots to seek nourishment deep within the sub-soil. Boulders and gravels in the valley bottom ensure good drainage.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Chambolle-Musigny is a red wine, often regarded as the most "feminine" wine of the Côte de Nuits; its intensity and delicacy express themselves with elegance and subtlety. To the eye, it presents a bright ruby hue with luminous highlights. It may darken a little over time but with no loss of impact. It's bouquet, easily recognizable, is composed of violet and small red fruits [raspberry, strawberry]. With further aging it tends towards spiced ripe fruits and prune, or towards truffle, underbrush and animal notes. Rich, fragrant and complex, it lines the palate with silk and lace. It is delicate but fleshy in texture no way detracts from its solid and durable structure. On the sweet side with little trace of acidity, its tannins remain silky-smooth.

Côte de Nuits – Villages

0 0 113

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 155.86 ha

SITUATION: These terroirs are worthy of carrying the appellation Village instituded in 1964, or the southern villages of the Côte de Nuits or the appellation Côte de Nuits-Villages. Corgolion in the South marks the border between the Côte de Nuits and the Côte de Beaune. To the North, a part of the terroirs belonging to the villages of Brochon and Fixin. Both red [Pinot Noir] and white [Chardonnay] wines may claim the appellation. Wines which derive wholly from a single Climat may add that name on the label.

TERROIR: The hill-slopes of Comblanchien and corgoloin are carved into the hard limestones of the Upper bathonien. The slopes are gentle and regular, not reaching the rim of the plateau. In the upper part the brown soil is only slightly limey with, lower down, a thick layer of pebbly scree, while at the foot of the slope is an extensive area of brown soils over accumulated alluvium. For their part, the wines of Finin and Brochon lie on the red-brown soils of the piemont composed of alluvium mixed with pebbly limestone.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Whether red or white, this is the wine King henri IV had in mind to go with the Sunday chicken he wished every family in France to enjoy. It is as accessible as it is amiable, honest and straightforward in taste. The red, which has the gleaming crimson highlights of the Pinot grape, veers sometimes towards an intense garnet hue or, when young, a bright cherry. It's aromas run a classic spectrum through cherry, gooseberry and blackcurrant to notes of underbruch, mushroom and spices [cinnamon]. This is a big-hearted wine, poweful in the mouth, full and meaty, and its tannins [more conspicuously present in the younger wines] are well smoothed-down.

Gevrey-Chambertin

9 26 65

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 408.44 ha [including 80.37 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: For travellers coming from Dijon, Gevrey-Chambertin is where Bourgogne's Elysian Fields begin. At the enterance to the hallowed hill of Lavaux, a château – once a property of the monks of CLuny – resembles a fortified wine-cellar. The canons of Langres, too, were for a long time guardians fo these vineyards which can be dated back to the year 640 AD, evidence of a long and intimate involvement in the history of Bourgogne's wine industry. Gevrey-chambertin forms a kind of guard of honour to a set of fabulous grands crus whose crown jewels are Chamberin and Clos de Bèze. The appellation dates from September 1936. The village of Brochon is an extension of Gevrey-Chambertin, sharing the same characteristics. The Pinot Noir is at its peak perfomance here.

TERROIR:The Premiers Crus occupy the upper portion of the Côte at heights of between 280 and 380 meters [brown limestone soils, rather shallow]. Below are the appellation Village vines on brown calcic or limey soils. The vines also reap the benefit of marls covered with screes and red silt washed down from the plateau. There stony mixtures confer elegance and delicacy on the wine while the clayey marls, which contain rich deposits of fossil shell-fish, and body and firmness. Exposures vary from east to south-east.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: In the first flush of youth their color is a bright ruby, turning to deep carmine or dark cerise with age. Strawberry, mulberry, violet, mignonette, and rose all help to make up their bouquet of spontaneous aromas. More maturity brings out liquorices, leather and fur, with gamey notes and hints of underbrush. On the palate, they impress by their firm structure, velvety tannins and delicate texture. These wines are everything a great Bourgogne should be: full bodied, powerful, rich, and meaty. They have both body and spirit. Pleasant when drunk young "on the fruit", they are nevertheless first and foremost wines for aging, often for long periods.

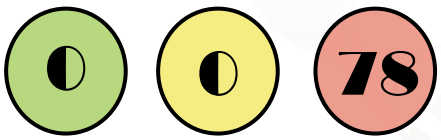
Marsannay



AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 184.80 ha

SITUATION: Regarded as the "Golden Gate to the Côte de Nuits", the appellation Marsannay covers the communes of Chenôve, Marsannay-la-Côte and Couchey. There is evidence of vineyards here, as is the case of the rest of the Côte, as early as the 7th century and the prestige of this vine-growing region is long-established. The Abbey of bèze, the Bishop of Autun, the Dukes of Bourgogne, and many others have owned vines here and the wines found their way to the tables of Louis XIV and Louis XVI. As late as the 19th century, some Climats enjoyed a classification equivalent to today's Grands Crus.

TERROIR: The vines extend from north to south along the best parts of the hill-slope and the ground at its foot at heights of 255 to 390 meters above sea level. Exposures range from due east to south. The soils, derived from mid-Jurassic strata, are very diverse in their composition.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Marsannay is the only appellation village which produces wines from all three colors. Their typicity is that of the Côte de Nuits, and their style resemble that of their neighboring appellations Fixin and Gevrey-Chambertin. The Marsannay reds have intense coloration and a bouquet which smotthly blends red fruit [morello cherry, strawberry] and blanc [blackberry, blueberry]. In the mouth, the attack is powerful and generous shading into a long and meaty finish.

Morey-Saint-Denis

5 20 23

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 88.48 ha [including 39.42 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Rich in Premiers Crus, Morey-Saint-Denis boasts also 5 Grands Crus [Clos de Tart, Bonnes Mares, Clos de la Roche, Clos Saint-Denis, Clos des Lambrays]. The appellation forms a bridge, between the vines of Gevrey-Chambertin and those of CHambolle-Musigny. The history of the wine-growing village has in the past been heavily influenced by the powerful religious house of Vergy, and abbeys of Cîteaux and Tart, and by some of the great Burgundian families. Of its wine, Dr. Lavalle wrote in 1855, "it can be said that it lacks nothing". The AOC status was instituted in 1936.

TERROIR: The vines grow on limestone and clay-limestone soil dating from the Middle Jurassic: white Bathonien Oolite up-slope and fossil ferous Bajocien limestone at the foot. The vineyards are east-facing and are at altitudes of 220-270 meters. Immediately below the village the slopes are differently oriented and the soil is more marly.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: The Color is usually a full, firm, bright, carmine or intense garnet with purplish highlights. The bouquet is partly of black fruits [blackcurrant, bilberry] and partly of red, pitted fruits such as cherries. Variants include bramble, violet, liquorice, and fruits conserved in liquor. When older it often envokes the "wildwood" scents of game, leather, and moss, even truffle. Sustained and structured , this wine lingers in the mouth without flinching – it has just the right balance between body and fruit. With its round tannins and mouth-filling generosity, it sings tenor, so to speak, in the Burgundian Choir.

Nuits-Saint-Georges

0 41 34

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 298.59 ha [including 138 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: Nuits-Saint-Georges is a likeable and lively town with a centuries-old history of winemaking. It gives its name to the Côte de Nuits, and its patron saint, Saint Georges, gives his name to their most famous wine. Its AOC, which dates from September 1936, includes the commune of Premeaux-Prissey in the appellation. Most of the wines grown here are Pinot noir, but there are some plots planted with Chardonnay. The Confrérie des Chevaliers du Tastevin, Borgogne's most famous wine-brotherhood, was founded here in 1934.

TERROIR: The soils in the northern sector derive from pebbly alluvium washed down from up-slope, or, in the low-lying parts, silty deposits from the river Meuzin. In the southern sector, while at the top of the slope, the rock is almost at the surface. esposures are mostly to the east or south-east.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: The appellation falls into two parts, divided by the town itself. The northern portion extends as far as the border of Vosne-Romanée, and the southern section lies partly in Nuits-Saint-Georges and partly in Premeaux.

Corresponding differences are observed in the wines. Their color is an intense crepuscular crimson with a hint of mauve. The nose features rose and liquorice. The young red wine has aromas of cherry, strawberry and blackcurrant, and when matured, leather, truffle, fur, game. Notes of macerated fruits [prune] complete the picture. Muscular and vigorous chewy and full-bodied, the structure is both well built and well-balanced and it is long in the mouth. It is mostly fully enjoyed after several years' laying down which rounds it out and underlines its sensuality and breeding.

Vosne-Romanée | Flagey-Échezeaux

8 14 26

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 150.54 ha [including 54.24 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: "Bourgogne has produced nothing better than this little corner where all her charms come together". So wrote Gaston Roupnel Burgundian author, celerated historian of the French countryside. This "Central pearl in Bourgogne's necklace" harbors fabled Grands Crus: Romanée-Conti, Romanée Saint-Vivant, La Romanée, La Tâche, La Grande Rue, Richebourg, and, in the neighboring commune of Flagey-Échezeaux, Échezeaux and Grands Échezeaux. Close to this paradise, the appellation village Vosne-Romanée and its Premiers Crus express the Pinot Noir grape at its heavenly best.

TERROIR: The plots growing the communal appellation lie either at the top of the slope or at its foot on either side of the Grand Cru Climats and in some cases reaching the same altitude. The soils are limestone mixed with clayey marls. Depth of soil varies from some tens of centimeters to 1 meter deep. The exposure is easterly.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Shades of red vary from pure ruby to black tulip and are often quite intense. At other times the wine is a fiery red darkening to garnet with a touch of crimson. Ripe fruit over spices is frequently the main ingredient of the bouquet, modified by the presence of strawberry, raspberry, bilberry, or black currant. These refined and well-blended aromas evolve with age into cherries-in-brand, preserved fruits, leather and fur, and gamey / woodland scents. On the palate the wine is velvety and distinguised – the Pinot Noir as the top of its form. The wine may seem a little austere in its youth; it needs time in the bottle to develop structure and fleshy texture. Often full-bodied and voluptuous, this wine is the equivalent of a Rubens nude.

Vougeot

1 4 1

AREA UNDER PRODUCTION [RED]: 10.59 ha [including 9.07 ha Premier Cru Vineyards]

SITUATION: The name Vougeot immediately calls up the name of that famous vineyard, the Clos de Vougeot. But this village of the Côte de Nuits has other fine vineyards. The name itself derives from that of the little river Vouge. The powerful abbbey of Cîteaux estblished these vineyards in the 12th century and laid the foundations of their long brilliant reputation. Their claim to fame is due at least partly to that fact that, rather unusaually for the Côte de Nuits, Vougeot produces white wines [Chardonnay] as well as red [Pinot Noir]. The appellation was formally instituted in 1936.

TERROIR: The vines grow at altitudes between 240 and 280 meters. Those on the upper slopes occupy shallow brown limestone soils. The soils on the lower slopes are limestones, fine-textured marls, and clays. These plots lie very close to the northern part of the Clos de Vougeot.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Vougeot has close affinities with its illustrious near neighbours [Clos de Vougeot, Musigny, Chambolle-Musigny Les Amoureuses]. Its color is between crimson and purple – deep, dark and luminous. It develops aromas of violet and small fruit [Morello cherry, blackcurrant]. When older, it leans toward underbrush, fallen leaves and truffle over animal notes. In the mouth, it has a four-sided structure but its tannins are nontheless delicate. The attack is straightfoward, acidty and chewiness are harmoniously balanced, and the finish often carries a hint of liquorice.

Spotlight: Grands Crus of the Côte de Nuits

Bonnes-Mares [14.66 ha]

Morey-Saint-Denis & Chambolle-Musigny

Full-Bodied and Tannic

SITUATION: Here, Morey-Saint-denis and Chambolle-Musigny demonstrate the ability of the Côte de Nuits to blend two distinct temperaments into a single personality. The Bonnes-Mares vineyard has been known by this name since the late Middle-Ages although the etmology still remains uncertain. The origin might be the berb marer meaning "to cultivate carefully", although many like to think the name alludes to ancient mother-goddesses. This explanation, however, is certainly less probable. Its appellation Grand cru status was recognized on December 8th, 1936.

The appellation Bonnes-Mares lies just south of the Clos de Tart, the Neighboring grand Cru, forming a rectangle betwenn the hollowed hillsides of Morey and Chambolle. More of it lies in the territory of Chambolle-Musigny than that of Morey-Saint-Denis. It's expostion is easterly and its altitude averages between 250 and 280 meters.

TERROIR: The sub-soil consists of limestone pavement and white marl and underlies clay-flint soils some 40 cm in depth on a gently sloping site. The soil is quite light and gravelly, and is brown or reddish in color. It's origins date back to the Jurassic period, some 150 million years ago.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Bonnes-Mares is rich and fleshy with mouth-filling body. It has a clearly defined structure, full-bodied rather than flowery and at times a little wild. It will stand aging for as long as 30-50 years. Wine lovers argue over the nuances said to distinguish the Morey side of the appellation from the Chambolle end. THe ruth is that the roudness of the one and the elegance of the other are siubmerged in the delicately tannic power common to both. Its aromas evoke violet, humus and underbrush.

Spotlight: The "Chambertin Family" of Grands Crus

SITUATION: Gevrey-Chambertin lies alongside the Route des Grands Crus at the northern end of the Côte which runs from North to South between the Combes of Lavaux at one end and Morey-Saint-Denis at the other. It can be likened to a Cinemascope screen, facing east, at altitudes between 240 and 280 meters. The Clos de Bèze first appears in the history of the Côte de Nuits in the year 640 AD as a monastic property. In 1219 it passed to the canons of Langres, who retained ownership until the French Revolution (1789). The name Chambertin has been used since the 13th century and once shared imperial approval with Clos de Bèze - Napoleon would drink nothing else. Its boundaries have not changed since the Middle Ages. In recognition of their similarity, the 7 Climats adjoining those of Chambertin and Clos de Bèze attach the name Chambertin to their own names (except in the case of Clos de Bèze where the name Chambertin comes first). Grand Cru status was officially granted on 31 July 1937.

WINE CHARACTERISTICS [RED]: Vivid coloration ranging from deep ruby to black-cherry. Their aromas suggest strawberry, black current, and gooseberry as well as fruit pits, liquorice, and spices. Violet, moss and underbrush are also likely to be present. On the palate, power, opulence and elegancce unite to make a full and complex body, full of sap and voluptuousness textured. Keeping potential is 10 years minimum. Although these sumptuous Grands Crus share a family resemblance, each has its own distinctive nuances.

Spotlight : Classifications of Bordeaux

There are several classifications of Bordeaux wines across the region. Several are worth investigating to identify great regional producers.

1	2	3	4	5
Crus Artisans	Crus Bourgeois	Crus Classés de 1855	Crus Classés de Saint-Émilion	Crus Classés de Graves
Small artisan producers of the Médoc.	For producers in the Médoc based on quality assessment of regional character. The Crus Artisans Classification

The History of This Classification: In the Médoc, the term "Crus Artisans" has officially existed for over 150 years: these small wineries often belonged to craftsmen, such as coopers, wheelwrights, and blacksmiths.

1

Crus Artisans

The Turning Point: This distinction found new life in 1989 with the founding of the Sundicat des Crus artisans du Médoc. They are "autonomous, small-and medium -sized estates at which the manager is actively involved in the operations of his/her vineyard, produces AOC wines, and sells the production that is bottled at the château."

Criteria: The quality and value of wines produced on small properties in one of the eight Médoc appellations: Médoc, Haut-Médoc, Listrac, Moulis, Margaux, Saint-Julien, Pauillac, and Saint-Estèphe.

Special Labeling: in 1994, European regulations reintroduced this designation and authorized a "Cru Artisan" mention on the wine's main label.

Crus Bourgeois

The History of This Classification: The term Cru Bourgeois became established through sheer use, as it dates back to the Middle Ages, when the citizens [bourgeois], residents of the "burgh' [bourg] of Bordeaux, acquire the region's best lands and were subsequently Granted this designation.

2

Crus Bourgeois

The Turning Point: In 1932, the Cru Bourgeois were grouped in a list established by the Bordeaux wine merchants, under the aegis of the Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce of and the Gironde CHamber of Agriculture.

Criteria: The quality and value of red wines produced in one of the eight Médoc appellations: Médoc, Haut-Médoc, Listrac, Moulis, Margaux, Saint-Julien, Pauillac, and Saint-Estèphe.

Special Labeling: An evolving classification: Since 2010, the official selection has been published annually in Spetember.

The 1855 Grand Cru Classification
Médoc & Sauternes

3
Grands Crus Classés en 1855

The History of This Classification: At the Exposition Universelle of 1855 in Paris, Emperor Napoleon III asked each wine region to establish a classification.

The Turning Point: The Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce and Industry, founded in 1705, began that process for the Gironde.

Criteria: Reputation of the wines and their transaction prices.

Special Labeling: This classification includes only red wines from the Médoc, the Sauternes and Barsac sweet wines, and one Graves red cru.

Grands Crus Classés en 1855 Médoc & Sauternes

Established in preparation for a presentation of the wines of the Gironde at the Universal Exhibition in Paris, at the request of Emperor Napoleon III. The Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce entrusted the classification to the "Syndicat des Cortiers de Commmerce", brokers on the Bordeaux stock exchange. Their mission was to make an official classification based on long years of experience and corresponding to recognition of the quality of the terroir and the renown of each growth. Information was drawn from the best sources.

Published on April 18th, 1855, the Classification was thus the culmination of a market reality and an evolution that has been going on for more than a century.

Grand Vin de Lafite Rothschild

Pauillac

Standing in the courtyard of Château Lafite-Rothschild, one must turn away from the structure to look at one of the most dramatic vineyard sites in the world. Rising steeply in a majestic curve, known as the Dome, are rows of Cabernet Sauvignon vines. They climb up to the plateau that forms the heart of Lafite's Grand Vin, its first wine.

Of the 276 acres of vines that form the estate, this 172-acre core is where Château Lafite-Rothschild's Grand Vin is produced. "It has a very special composition," says Eric Kohler, the technical director since 2015. "It is on a plateau, deep gravel mixed with clay. That mix balances the water when it is needed in the summer."

Château Latour

"Power, Precision and Purity"

Pauillac

Of the four first growths in the Médoc, Château Latour is the one that's gone furthest with organic and biodynamic methods. Owned by the Pinault family of luxury products empire Kering [the group that manages Gucci, Alexander McQueen, Saint-Laurent and more] since 1993, all of its 229 acres have been certified organic for the last two years.

The heart and jewel of the vineyard is the 113 acres of the walled L'Enclos, the source of Latour's famed Grand Vin. That block is now biodynamic, one of the largest areas of biodynamics in Bordeaux.

"We do notice greater intensity in the fruit, perhaps more energy in the wine," says Jean Garandeau, sales and marketing director at Latour, when asked what effects biodynamics has on the vineyard. "We are certainly pleased with the results in the health of the vineyard."

The L'Enclos, at the southern limit of Pauillac, dates at least to the 17th century. The vineyard's proximity to the Gironde estuary, less than half a mile away and very visible, is what makes it so vital to Latour's wine. That creates a micro-climate where temperatures are two to three degrees warmer in the winter than the rest of the vineyard.

Gravel and clay, drained since the 18th century, make "a perfect spot for Cabernet Sauvignon," says Garandeau. Today, Cabernet makes up at leat 90% of the Grand Vin.

It's austere sometimes at the beginning, but it deepens as it matures. the style of Latour has always been conducive to aging. THe combination of the L'Enclos vineyard and biodynamics has further refined and defined this essential character, a wine for the generations.

Château Mouton Rothschild

"Opulence and Velvet Tannins"

Château Mouton Rothschild

Pauillac

Château Mouton Rothschild is the sunniest of the first growths, the most opulent and the richest. It has always been like this, sometimes excessively so. Today, it's more resrained and succulent.

Of course, it's all down to the vineyard, some 200 acres planted in gravel that's up to 22 feet deep in places, with a chalk subsoil.

It's the highest point in Pauillac [all of 80 feet above sea level] with two plateaus of vines, once close to the château called Le Grand Plateau, and the other named Le Plateau des Carruades. A small dip between the two gives a pause in this intensity of vines and gravel.

Mouton Rothschild was not among the four first growths in the 1855 classification. It became a first growth in 1973, after decades of lobbying by owner Philippe de Rothschild. It's easy to question why it was not classified as a first growth. Remember, the classification was based on sale price, not necessarily the quality of the wine.

The secret of Mouton is the vineyard that has stayed the same since the [English branch of the] Rothschild family bought it in 1853," says Philippe Dhalluin, the retiring managing director who will hand over the reins to Emmanuel Danjoy, the technical director. "The Grand Plateau is precocious, It gives tannins that are soft and fruit that is sweet."

Like all the Médoc first growths, the Cabernet gives these intense but velvet tannins, and the richness that you can see even two days after fermentation starts," says Danjoy. "It gives flavor, finesse and the perfumes that come from every tank in the cellar at harvest time."

It's a supreme example of the blissful marriage of gavel and Cabernet Sauvignon that produces an enduring wine.

Château Margaux

Continuity and attention to detail keep Château Margaux at the top of its game.

The southern most of the four Médoc first growths, it's known for its grand, classical château, an impressively distant vista at the end of a long avenue of trees. When she's in Bordeaux, this is the home of Château Margaux owner Corinne Mentzelopoulos.

The Château is at the heart of the 654-acre estate, which is made up of woods and fields. Some 252 of those acres are under vine. The vineyard, with records that date to the 16th century, is the same today as it was then. Merlot vines start as the fields by the Gironde begin to slope up.

Just to the north of the château is the walled vineyard at the heart of the Grand Vin, planted to Cabernet Sauvignon. This, says Philippe Bascaules, the director of Château since 2016, "gives the perfect wine and makes at least 70% of the Grand Vin."

Both in the vineyard and cellar, Bascaules descibes an almost fanatical attention to detail.

"We have divided the original parcels into four, and each microparcel has its own character," he says.

That's why there are now 95 tanks in the cellar, with 30 more in the works. In the new cellar, designed by leading architect Norman Foster, the rows of tanks seem to stretch far into the distance.

"We want to treat each micro-parcel individually," he says. "We are observing out vineyard over the long-term. We have the time."

The wine that comes from the ancient vineyard has always been known for its elegance. New approaches, which include organic practices as much as possible, have resulted in greater definition of the wine. "Everything is in blance," says Bascaules. "It is not the intensity of one or other element, but the combination that makes Châeau Margaux and its perfume, the softness of the tannins that are at its heart."

The increased use of Cabernet Sauvignon in the blend has not changed the primary character of Château Margaux. The tannins may be a tad more intense, but then so are the perfume and the velvet, the harmony and the gentle concentration.

Château Haut-Brion

"The Historical Exception"

CHATEAU HAUT-BRION

of the five first growths, Château Haut-Brion is the outlier. It's in the first area of vines planted in the Bordeaux region. Its vineyard is an oasis of green amid the suburban sprawl of universities, hospitals and housing, rather than in open country close to the Gironde estuary. It has more Merlot in the blend than other first growths.

It also has the longest history. Local records extend to the 16th century. The wood-lined library that houses the Château's archives was created by the current prersident of the estate, Prince Robert of Luxembourg, grandson of American Clerence Dillon, who bought the Châeau in 1935.

A Coin of first-century Emperor Claudius found in the vineyard suggests it could first have been palnted by the Romans, who were viticulturally active in Bordeaux, says deputy managing director Jean Philippe Delmas, who has been at Haut-Brion since 2003.

"Haut-Brion has an ecosystem that stems from its history," he says.

The ecosystem in question is the alchemy of the soil, the subsoil and the climate. The company is studying the microbiology of the soil and how it affects the different parcels.

"The magic of Haut-Brion is that we have this great terroir, sanctified by time, so we hardly have to interfere during vinification," says Delmas.

The vineyard slopes gently southward, with gravel over large rocks. The terroir is reflected in the wine, austere when young with a strong line of tannins. Delmas descibes the complexity of aromas when the wine is still in the tank. He says they can always find the leather, coffee and toastiness in the young wine.

In a row of first growths, it's always easy to pick Haut-Brion out of a blind tasting because of its high percentage of Merlot. The grape represents 40% of the vineyard. Merlot gives the wine its richness and generosity once it has begun to mature, which continues the line of history that surrounds this ancient estate.

The Médoc & Graves [aka. "Left Bank"]

The Médoc Appellations

On the left bank of the Gironde River, the 8 Médoc appellations include the 2 sub-regional appellations [Médoc & Haut-Médoc] and the 6 communal appellations [Saint-Estèphe, Pauillac, Saint-Julien, Mulis en Médoc, Listrac-Médoc, Margaux]. They share more than 16,000 exceptional hectares of vines, a terroir which from time immemorial has revealed outstanding talent and created wines of distinct personality. As with all appellations of controlled origin, the eight Médoc appellations are subject to regorous production conditions, which ensure their quality and typiciity.

Producer Spotlight : Château Sociando-Mallet

Befour his passing in 2019, the indefatigable Jean Gautreau oversaw no fewer than 50 vintages of true vins de garde at Château Sociando-Mallet. Through the '70s and '80s. Gautreau developed a reputation for producing some of the most overachieving reds in the Médoc, wines that would chart out at or near the top of a left bank "pound for pound" ranking. Gautreau's style was establsihed early and has never wavered: his are uncompromising, deeply-colored and richly structured wines intended for long snoozes in cool cellars. And if you've had even one mature experience with 'Soc,' you know how beautifully they come out on the other side.

Producer Spotlight :
Château Palmer – A Perennial Overachiever

Château Palmer, classified a Third Growth Bordeaux, is in the commune of Cantenac, the heart of the Margaux appellation.

The Palmer vineyards, originally part of the larger estate of Château d'Issan, cover 66 hectares of gravelly soil on terraces overlooking the Garonne River. There are equal amounts of Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon [47% each]. The remainder is Petit Verdot. From 2014 forward, the entire property has been farmed biodynamically

Château Palmer is named after Major General Charles Palmer of the British Army, who bought the estate in 1814 from Marie de Gascq. A passionate man, he invested a great deal of time, energy and money to develop his property, purchasing land and buildings in the communes of cantenac, Issan, and Margaux, and by the 1830s his property covered 163 hectares, 82 hectares of which were vineyards. "Palmer's Claret" quickly gained popularity in London clubs and even found favor in the eyes of the future King George IV.

Charles sold the estate in 1843. THe current owners, the Sichel and Mahler-Besse families, have been in place since 1938. Their focus throughout has been on authenticity, quality and consistency.

Château Palmer's - Historical XIXth Century Wine

First made in 2004, the Château Palmer Historical XIXth Century Wine is a two-region blend, not a "Bordeaux wine" per AOC regulations. The mix includes [roughly] 42.5% each of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot from the Château Palmer estate vineyards. The other 15% is Syrah taken from the Rhône Valley.

Because of the regional and verital mix, Historical XIXth Century Wine is not labeled as Bordeaux but simply Vin. For the same legal resaons, the name Château Palmer, the picture of their Château dose not appear on the front label and the wine is not vintage dated. Vintage can be determined by the lot number on the bottom of the bottle. For example, L20.13 reflects the 2013 vintage.

The wine is not made every vintage.

Spotlight: The Crown Jewel in Châteauneuf-du-Pape

Legend Reynaud's holdings, nephew Emmanuel Reynaud assumed control of the estate following Jacques' death in 1997.

The spirt of Jacques Reynaud, the godfather of Châteauneuf-du-Pape, is always present at the storied estate of Château Rayas. When this legendary founder died suddenly in 1997, his wife asked their nephew. Emmanuel Reynaud, to take the reins of both Château Rayas and Château de Fonsalette. Already making wines at his father's Château des Tours, Emmanuel agreed.

Somewhat reclusive and to be found working his vineyards at most any time of day, every day. Emmanuel does not revel in the fame and notoriety that come with making such sought-after and acclaimed wines. Instead, he continues to carry the mantle of his famous forebears, producing hauntingly aromatic wines quietly and successfully at his three estates: Château Rayas, Château des Tours, and Château de Fonsalette.

Rayas is a secluded estate northeast of the village, not far from Courthézon. It is unusual because the 13 hectares of vines are north facing and contain none of the fabled round pebbles [galets roulés], and that vineyard is surrounded by forest. During vinification, each varietal of every vineyard is fermented separately in oak casks, with assemblage taking place in enamel-lined tanks before bottling Fermentation is allowed to begin naturally with no inoculation of yeasts in 80-100-year-old foudres. "These foudres were around when my grandfather was alive, and he bought them secondhand," says Emmanuel.

There is a clear through-line in all the wines produced by Emmanuel – a unique weighty, aromatic, complex, and savory signature of all the wines that places them among the most well-regarded, sought-after bottles of the appellation.

Spotlight: What is the Differnece Between the Various Italian Wine Classifications?

Indicazione Geografica Tipica
[IGT]

The broadest category is Indicazione Geografica Tipica, or IGT. All grapes in IGT wines should come from the IGT region stated on the label, but otherwise the wines do not have to conform to strict standards regarding the style of wine. Wines in the IGT category are often, but not always, of lower quality than DOC wines. Some producers of high quality, non-traditional wines, like the makers of some super Tuscans, may release their wines under the IGT classification when they do not wish to adhere to the strict DOC or DOCG restrictions.

Denominazione di Origine Controllata
[DOC]

The next highest quality level is Denominazione di Origine Controllata, or DOC, which means 'Designation of controlled origin." There are 329 different DOCs in Italy, which covers many types of wines, from the sparkling wines of Prosecco, to the Vin Santo dessert wines of Tuscany, to a wide range of red and white wines across the country. Each DOC has its own rules about permitted grape varieties, maximum harvest yields, and aging requirements.

Denominazione di Origine Controllata e Garantita
[DOCG]

Is the highest quality level. The DOCG designation was created in 1980 in response to criticisms that there were too many DOCs and their quality was variable. DOCG wines, in contrast, were to be truly the best of what Italian wines could offer. The first DOCG were Barolo and Barbaresco, both red wines made from the Nebbiolo grape in Piedmont; and Brunello di Montalcino and Vino Nobile di Montpulciano, both red wines made from the Sangiovese grape in Tuscany. There are now 74 DOCG wines in Italy, most of them concentrated in the regions of Piedmont, Tuscany, and the Veneto.

What is the Difference Between DOC and DOCG Wines?

The practical difference between DOC and DOCG is one quality: DOC and DOCG wines are both wines with a designation of origin, but DOCG wines have an additional 'garantita," or guarantee, by the Italian government to be wines of especially high quality. Each DOCG-labeled wine must pass a wine quality tasting panel, while DOC wines must merely be grown and made in accordance with the rules of the appellation.

Are There Other Classifications for Italian Wines?

Aside from DOC or DOCG status, there are a few important words you may see on Italian wine labels that indicate wine quality.

- CLASSICO – Can be added after the appellation name for wines that are made in the historic center of a wine producing region, for example Chianti Classico or Valpolicella Classico
- SUPERIORE – Means that a wine has at least 0.5% higher alcohol content than the regular wine from a certain region, and also adheres to limits regarding harvesting and minimum aging.
- Wines labeled as RISERVA will have aged even longer, for Minimum two years depending on the appellation.

"This estate is too good to be true. The wines are amongst the best in Italy, the reds famous and the whites, in my view, just as good, and equally beautiful with age; the family that produces them is charming, three `generations from Emidio himself (elegant in flat cap and red sweater vest) to his lovely, enthusiastic grand-daughter Chiara, who handles export markets, not to forget Emidio's daughters Daniela and Sofia, who now run the winery; and the wines have been grown naturally and vinified using traditional techniques since the first vintage in 1964, perhaps the oldest and most genuine 'natural wines' in Italy, and not a hipster in sight. It's just too perfect, the epitome of all good things Old World viticulture; and it's all real. Did I mention that the wines are breathtaking? And the Pepe family have a huge aging cellar where they keep large stocks of old wines, which are decanted to order by Emidio's wife Rosa, so you can order old bottles of Pepe knowing that they're genuine and that they've been stored perfectly. Ridiculous."

Expressions of Italian Nebbiolo

[nebby – oh - low]

One of Italy's most important red wine varieties made famous by the Barolo region of Piedmont where wines offer delicate aromas accompanied by strong tannins.

Primary Flavors of Nebbiolo

Cherry | Rose | Leather | Anise | Clay Pot

Barolo [Piedmont]
The most well-known Nebbiolo region. Loved for its rich rose and anise aromas and mouth-drying tannin.

Barbaresco [Piedmont]
Close to Barolo but with different soils. Wines are aromatic [like Barolo] but usually with lighter tannins.

Gattinara [Piedmont]
Northern vineyards towards the Alps produce wine s with elevated acidity, dried fruit notes, and earthiness.

Valtellina [Lombardy]
In Lombardy, Nebbiolo is called Chiavennasca. Wines are often floral and light-bodied like Pinot Noir.

Barbaresco

"One of Piedmont's greatest wine regions, Barbaresco rarely gets mentioned without a reference to its neighbor Barolo. Both are among the best expressions of the Nebbiolo grape and where Barolo can be austere and tannic, Barbaresco can be its warmer, more approachable counterpart"

Grape Varieties: 100% Nebbiolo

Aging Requirements:

Barbaresco: Minimum 26 Months from November 1st of the harvest year [Minimum 9 Months in wood], may be released after January 1st of the third year following harvest.

Barbaresco Riserva: Minimum 50 months from November 1st of the harvest year [Minimum 9 months in wood], may be released after January 1st of the fifth year following harvest.

Barbaresco

The historical commune in the heart of the appellation, Barbaresco itself produces complete, rounded expresions of Nebbiolo, Resplendent with Fine, Linear tannins, brittle but jostling perfumes and lashings of red fruits and spices. Elevations overall are not especially high compared to Barolo and, in Barbaresco, Treiso, but a slightly cooler and breezier micro-climate next to Neive means great freshness, while a high presence of sand in some of the most fabled sites such as Asili produces wines of incredible refinement and noble aroma. Rabaja, the other bona-fide Grand Cru in the commune, tends to display darker, spicier berried fruits, with epic energy and fine balsamic and mineral notes. For those starting out, Barbareseco tends to produce very consistent, fruity and pretty wines with long aging potential.

Spotlight: Produttori del Barbaresco – Continues to set some of the highest standards of winemaking for any cooperative in the world.

The Produttori del Barbaresco, founded in 1958, now has 51 members and controls more than 100 hectares (250 acres) of premium Nebbiolo vineyards in Barbaresco. Each family is in full control of its land, growing Nebbiolo grapes with centuries old skill and dedication. The winery produces a Barbaresco D.O.C.G., a blend of Nebbiolo grapes harvested from different vineyards, and a simpler Nebbiolo Langhe suited for earlier consumption.

In great vintages, nine single-vineyard Barbarescos are produced from nine classic premium sites within the Barbaresco village boundaries: Asili, Rabajà, Pora, Montestefano, Ovello, Pajè, Montefico, Muncagota, and Rio Sordo. These are the geographical names of sites where Nebbiolo grapes have always been cultivated. The name of the single-vineyards, the total number of bottles produced, and the name of the owners of the vineyards are marked on the labels.

Neive

As a rule, the wines of Barbaresco tend to drink slightly earlier than those of Barolo. This is evidenced in many of the beautifully succulent, full-bodied wines found in the Neive commune. Built around fruit expression and bold but ripe tannins, sone of Barbaresco's most lauded wines hail from Neive. The soils in Neive have a high pressence of sand and grey marls, with a seam of limestone and clay underlying to ensure a steady water supply. The ines' roots are forced to bury deep in order to stabilize and as such there is a high proportion of old vines here which are prized for their consistency, power, and complexity. High-toned, floral and bewitching Barbarescos of intensity and complexity.

Winemaker Spotlight : Giorgio Rivetti of La Spinetta : One of Italy's Most Influential Winemakers

Growing up in Piedmont, Giorgio Rivetti realized at an early age that he had a passion for wine. After studying viticulture and enology at the Scuola Enologica di Alba, one of Italy's oldest wine institutes, he apprenticed in both Burgundy and Bordeaux. He returned to Piedmont and began working alongside his father Giuseppe Rivetti, "Pin", making the family's acclaimed Moscato d'Asti.

His father taught him that the secret to making great wine was found in the vineyard. Giorgio quickly learned that by respecting the vine and its terroir and by dramatically reducing yields, the result was always top quality fruit – the essential to all great wine. He continues to employ this philosophy today and says, "I don't achieve any magic in the cellar; I start with great fruit and the rest is simple."

Giorgio made his first red wine Barbera d'Asti Ca di Pian in 1985. It was a fruit forward, rich and velvety but elegant example of Barbera that led many to rethink the potential of this under-appreciated local grape. With the success of La Spinetta's Moscato d'Asti and Barbera d'Asti, Giorgio led his family to acquire top vineyard sites throughout Piedmont. By 2000, La Spinetta's line-up include fifteen mostly single-vineyard wines including a Barolo, Barbaresco and Barbera – some of Italy's most exciting wines.

The Gallina Collection

Gallina allows La Spinetta to produce wines that are refined with great elegance; these are sensual wines with surprising longevity, characterized by intense floral aromas, combined with delicate notes of eucalyptus and mint.

'The Starderi Collection

In 1996 La Spinetta acquired the Starderi vineyard, which is located on the hills just behind those of Gallina. Despite the two vineyards being geographically in the vicinity of one another, they hold very distinct characteristics which are determined by the crucial differences in microclimate, exposure and terrain. The Tanaro River, which flows at the bottom of the valley, affects the climate by mitigating both the extreme winters and the drastic hot summers.

Starderi always produces wines which express a rich character while maintaining great elegance. This difference is pronounced in the aromas: Starderi shows mainly hints of red berries and ripe fruit.

Treiso

The highest commune in the Barbaresco Appellation, rising to over 400m, Treiso is notably cooler than its two neighbors, in some cases ripening almost a full month later. Harder and more compact soils, more Serravallian in profile, means darker and slightly wilder-styled wines tending towards crisp, forest fruit flavors, earth, salt and spices. Where the wines are occasionally described as austere, this is rarely born out in the best examples, which combine freshness, depth and tense, jewel-like berry flavors.

The Valeirano Collection

In 1997 La Spinetta finalized the purchase of the Valeirano vineyands, which are located in the municipality of Treiso. The vineyard's soil is mainly of marine origin, similarly of those in the Serralunga d'Alba area. Barbaresco Valirano is an elegant wine.

The soils at Valeirano are very similar to those from Serralunga which results in a Barbaresco which has some deep links to Barolo. This Barbaresco cru is characterized by great longevity and minerality.

Barolo

Apart for the Côte d'Or in Burgundy, perhaps no other wine territory has been disected in greater detail than the Barolo zone. This makes perfect sense, as these are arguably the two most ideal representations of the concept of terroir, just as Pinot Noir from one village in Burgundy reveals different flavors than that of another nearby hamlet, so too offerings of Barolo from various communes often display diverse characteristics, despite the fact that every wine here is made excludively from Nebbiolo.

Given that any explanation of terroir will deal with soils, the conventional thinking is that a key difference in describing Barolo styles is to indentify the soils in the vineyard or vineyards from which the fruit is sourced. The western Communes, such as La Morra and Verduno, are primarily comprised of younger soils known as Tortonian, while the eastern portion of the zone is largely made up of older soils known as Serravalian (often refered to in the past as Helvetian); this is prevalent in the communes of Serralunga d'Alba and Monforte d'Alba.

Via Nuova [New Road] was the name of a small vineyard on the edge of the historical center of Barolo, the name coming from its proximity to the road [new at that time!] connecting Barolo to Novello. All that remains today of the road is a small walking path through the vineyards. The wine was produced as a single-vineyard Barolo for many years until, in 2010, this small Cru was incorporated into the larger Terlo subzone. And so, as a sort of homage to tradition, Barolo Via Nuova is now produced as a blend of 6 different vineyards: Terlo and Liste in Barolo, Ravera e Mosconi in Monforte d'Alba and Gabutti and Baudana in Serralunga d'Alba. This classic Barolo blend combines structure with elegance and complexity, emphasizing the particularities of each vineyard site. Though a bit timid when first opened, some time in the glass [or decanter] will reveal Via Nuova's alluring ehereal floral and fruit perfumes.

Spotlight - The Five Most Important Communes

Barolo

This commune that lends its name to the wine is situated towards the southern part of the zone; it is one of only three communes that is entirely located with the Barolo zone, with the other two being Castiglione Falletto and Serralunga d'Alba. The wines here are a mix of styles, with a typical Barolo from here being rich in tannins with a slight austerity. The most famous vineyard here is Cannubi, which contains both Tortonian and Serrvalian soils, creating wines of great complexity.

Castiglion Falletto

The commune of Castiglione Falletto is located west of Serralunga d'Alba, north of Monforte d'Alba and east of La Morra. The soils here are mixed with a good percentage of sand, resulting in wines that are often more fragrant and less tannic than those from Serralunga and Monforte; a typical Castiglione Falletto Barolo displays red cherry and strawberry fruit aromas and flavors along with distinct red spice notes. Rocche di Castiglione is arguably the best known site here.

La Morra

Situated in the north central sector of the zone, La Morra ranks first among all the communes as far as most acreage of Nebbiolo planted for production of Barolo as well as number of wineries (62); it is tied with Serralunga d'Alba for most MGA (39). Several of the highest vineyards in the zone are located here at elevations of more than 1400 Feet.

La Morra is know for Barolo with rounder, more gentle tannins and more floral aromatics (especially from the Brunate MGA), as opposed to wines from Serralunga and Monforte. The wines from the Rocche dell'Annunziata site are among the most complex, elegant and structured in all the commune.

Monforte d'Albe

Situated at the far southeastern reaches of the zone, Monforte d'Albe is home to long-aging, powerful examples of Barolo. There are only 11 MGA, but 53 wineries here; one reason for this is the large number of producers that make a Bussia Barolo. The wines here are generally quite ripe, and while there are numerous producers that take a modern approach in the cellar (e.g. Domenico Clerico), there are some that specialize in more traditional examples of Barolo.

Serralunga d'Alba

Situated north of Monforte d'Alba, Surralunga d'Alba marks the eastern Border of the Barolo zone. If a classic style of Barolo combines deep structure and longevity, then the Barolos of Serralunga are certainly among the most classic.

Spotlight – The Remaining Six

Novello

The commune of Novello is located as the far southwestern corner of the Barolo zone, and has one of the coolest climates of any commune, thanks to the winds from the Cottian Alps to the south. The wines of Novello were among the most unrelenting years ago, but because of climate change, a typical Barolo from Novello is now riper and much more elegant. Clearly the interest in this commune over the past decade can be traced to the work of Valter Fissore and his wife Nadia, at their Elvio Cogno estate, with wines from the Ravera vineyard; recently several renowned producers such as Vietti and Paolo Scavino have also released a Ravera Barolo.

Verduno

Situated above La Mora, Verduno's Luminous vineyards mark the northern edge of the denomination. Due to a relatively small output and because until recently most growers sold their grapes to larger producers that didn't list Verduno on their crus on their labels. This village remains little known to all but the most passionate Barolo lovers. Over the last decase, a number of famed producers have joined a handful of historc Verduno conterparts to make fantastic, refined Barols with floral and spicy sensations. Verduno has 12 official crus that include Monvigliero, one of the best sites in the denomination. With silty, calcareous clay soils and full southern exposure, the Tanaro River just below generates cool evening breezes. Monvigliero Barols posses aromatic intensity, complexity, finesse and longevity.

Grinzane Cavour, Roddi, Cherasco, Diano d'Alba

These four villages have the least amount of vineyards dedicated to Barolo production. They possess fewer good and very good crus in comparison to other villages.

Grinzane Cavour is best kown for its eponymous castle, in the 19th century, belonged to the family of Count Camillo Benso of Cavour, the frist prime minister of unified Italy. Cavour was behind the country's revolutionary agricultural reforms and was a trailblazer in Barolo production. Today, the village has eight delimited crus, including Castello, the most historic.

Located on the Northeastern edge of the denomination, the medieval hamlet of Roddi has just 57 acres of vines devoted to Barolo production. Boasting an austere 11th-century castle, Roddi was long seen as one of Barolo's forgotten towns. However, that changed when celebrated producer Enrico Scavino acquired land in the Bricco Ambrogio vineyard area. Today, this is Roddi's sole delimited cru, capable of supple Barolos with charming, floral aromatics.

Ranking 10th in terms of volume, Diano d'Alba has only 35 acres of Barolo vines. More noted for is Dolcetto production, the town sits between Grinzane Cavour and Serralunga d'Alba, and it has three geographic mentions, the most notable being Sorano. Most of this cru lies in Serralunga, where it's known as a top site.

Only a sliver of Cherasco is dedicated to Barolo production. Accounting for less than five acres and 0.13% of total output, the town has one delimited subzone, Mantoetto, which is owned by a single producer.

Cerasuolo di Vittoria Classico

Unavailable ○ | Occhipinti "Grotte Alte" 2019 191

Cerasuolo di Vittoria is one of the most distinctive red wines produced on the Italian island of Sicily. It is currently the only one considered worthy of DOCG status. This vividly colored red wine, from the island's southeastern corner, is made from the Nero d'Avola [also known as Calabrese] and Frappato grape varieties. The former must contribute 50-70 percent, the latter 30-50.

Cerasuolo means "cherry like". The wines have a deep ruby red color complemented by pronounced aromas of cherries and red berries. It is Cerasuolo di Vittoria's Frappato content that is responsible for the style's bright, idiosyncratic flavor [of black cherries and strawberries]. Bur Frappato wines are almost always light bodied and low in tannin. This is due chiefly to the variety's tin, delicate skins.

The Nero d'Avola component brings weight and body, balancing Frappato's perky fruitiness. This explains why the best Cerasuolo di Vittoria wines typically contain a slightly higher proportion of Nero d'Avola. The best examples will reward up to 20 years of bottle aging, although most are best consumed within 5-10 years of vintage.

Sangiovese Wine Regions

It might surprise you to know that Sangiovese is actually quite scarce outside of Italy. In terms of world plantings, Sangiovese is less abundant than even little-known Mourvèdre.

The Sangiovese grape is a bit of a chameleon; easily altering its genetics to fit the environment. There are many different mutations of the variety all over Italy, which results in very different tasting wines. From the delicate floral strawberry aromas of Montefalco Rosso to the intensely dark and tannic wines of Brunello di Montalcino, Sangiovese wine has something for everyone.

Brunello di Montalcino

Spotlight : Biondi-Santi : The Founder's Of Brunello

It is a rare phenomenon that a wine can trace its origins to a single man. Brunello di Montalcino, however, owes its existence to the creative genius of Clemente Santi and his nephew Ferruccio Biondi Santi who in the eighteen hundreds started producing barrel-aged single-varietal wines in Montalcino, betting on the extraordinary quality of Sangiovese grosso.

Since 1888, the first vintage of Brunello in History, Biondi-Santi has continued to produce wines renowned for their elegance and extraordinary longevity.

Biondi-Santi "Tenuta Greppo" Riserva

Renowned for its extraordinary longevity, this rare wine has been released only 44 times from 1888 till today and each production is extremely limited. Riserva is traditionally produced with grapes coming from only the oldest vineyards, of more than 25 years of age. At the center of the cellar at Tenuta Greppo there is a dark room, hidden away from the world, dedicated specifically to Riserva. It is "La Storica", the estate wine library where Biondi-Santi carefully refines the bottles of each Riserva vintage ever produced. "La Storica" is an intimate place where the bottles lie neatly stacked in small cells divided by vintage, naked, wearing only a drop of bees wax to seal the cork and minimize oxidization.

The Riserva will be removed from La Storica only at the moment that it is sold. It is then dressed IN the original label from its vintage, including "la lunetta" – the neck label which carries the number of each bottle, and the date of its departure from the cellar is handwritten on the back label. If a Riserva has been topped up and re-corked in the past, a special topping-up certificate will be placed around its neck, certifying when this delicate reconditioning has taken place.

Producer Spotlight : Château Musar Red

Seven Years in the making, Château Musar is a blend of Cabernet Sauvignon, Carignan and Cinsault from Vineyards Near the Bekka Valley vilages of Aana and Kefraya on gravelly soils over limestone. Planted from the 1930s onward, yields are low from these mature bushvines [average age: 40 Years]: Between 15 to 35hl per hectare.

The Varietal components in Château Musar Red undergo lengthy fermentations in cement vats at temperatures below 30°C. Six months after the harvest they are transferred into French barrels [oak from the Forest of Nevers] for one year.

The varietal components are brought together two years after the harvest; the resulting blend is then placed back in cement tanks before beting bottle twelve months later. Each wine is blended to reflect the character of the vintage. After four years' bottle maturation in the deep stone cellars of Château Musar, the finished wines are released a full seven years after harvest.

Spotlight : La Vinya del Vuit : The Wine of the Eight

La Vinya del Vuit [The Wine of the Eight] was founded in 2001 by a group of eight friends:

Sara Perez | Rene Barbier IV | Ester Nin | Nuria Perez
Montse Mateos | Iban Foix | Julien and Philippe Thévenon Basté

Barbier and Sara Perez are the oenologists for La Vinya del Vuit. Sara Perez is considered by many to be the most important woman winemaker in Spain. She is also a wine consultant, the oenologist as Mas Martinet and Venus la Uniersal with her husband René Barbier IV. Barbier is the son of the legendary Priorat pioneer René Barbier (III) from Clos Mogador.

"Achievements on a grand scale are the work of collaborators, not individuals. They take commitment and stewardship over a long period of time. It starts with someone planting a "seed", but the real work comes in bringing together a united team to see it through."
